TESTS APPLIED TO EDUCATION

ABLE ADDRESSES AT TEACHERS' CONVENTION

Professor Dale and President Pritchett Before Dominion Association.

The Dominion Educational Association this morning assembled in Assembly hall with the president, Dr. Robinson, again in the chair.

A very interesting address was given by Prof. J. A. Dale, professor of education in McGill University, who dealt with the subject, "The Tests of a Successful Education," from a broad view.

Dr. Robinson, in introducing Prof. Dale, said that British Columbia was rather interested in McGill. The people of this province came largely from Ontario and from the maritime provinces. There was a good deal of rivalry between the two sections as to educational institutions. He traced the history of the move for affiliation with eastern universities to affiliate with Toronto University, owing to the charter of the latter. A connection was made with McGill, however. There had been great benefits from this connection with McGill. British Columiba students stood well in the examinations.

Prof. Dale was greeted with applause. He made reference to the auspicious connection between McGill and this province. The connection must lapse shortly he felt. A provincial university would soon be established, and then the actual connection would be severed. High class papers were expeeted from the west by the examiners at McGill.

The speaker referred to his visits to teachers' gatherings in Europe and elsewhere within the past few months. Good teachers and good theorists were coming together he found to ascertain the common ground between them. These were signs of the clearing away of the fogs that had interferred with educational work. Too often those concerned took too narrow a view from the standpoint of the department with which he was connected. Instead of this they should attack these educational problems in a fair way. He referred to the dreamers who would build up a equitable boy and to the other dreamers who believed in the stick because they had been at both ends of it. A more scientific point of view should be aimed at.

Prof. Dale alluded to some of the difficulties encountered in formulating a system of education. In this he recounted some of his own experience from the public school, to the public day school of England, and then to the head master's class in that school. He paid a tribute to the training he received at the hands of his master. The inspirations he received there were the true test of true education. Alluding to the five years he attended Oxford University, the speaker showed that university training coming at a time when a boy was at the impressionable age, from 15 to 19, was of the greatest importance to a boy.

From that on the speaker said he had followed teaching. It was necessary for him to look back and see how it was that the results were got from him as a boy. On the training of teachers there was little light. There was a wide difference of opinion on this fundamental question. Experimental work in education was of incaculable benefit in solving this problem. The question was to know what the results were of the methods of teaching. He told of a school in England where he had had experience where acceleration was made the aim and where the educational life was crushed out of the boys. He did not wish to deprecate the practice of doing accelerated work, because many schools taught far too little. It took two to make a successful education—the teacher and the pupil.

It was unwise to attempt to give a definition for education. It was open to many definitions according to the standpoint from which it was viewed. From educational institutions goodness and efficiency was expected. It was a critical time in educational methods. The old curricula were breaking up. The tendency was to fly to the other extreme of introducing many new subjects. The next problem was to find what groups of subjects would fill the end of goodness and efficiency desired from the schools. The nature of the pupil must be conquered by obedience.

The idea that the mind made growth by absorbtion had the effect of stimulating the teacher to the careful choice for the growth of the mind. The growth of mind was an analysis which did away with the chaos outside.

The various exhibits in connection with the Dominion Education Association will be open to the public on Saturday, the 17th inst., from 2 to 8 p.m., in the following buildings:

Assembly Hall, Fort street—Victoria, Vancouver and Vernon displays.

High School, Fort street—Winnipeg and Toronto displays.

Central Manual Training School — Winnipeg, Vancouver and Victoria displays.

Pemberton Gymnasium—High School and Normal School displays.

SHAH PREPARES FOR FLIGHT FROM PERSIA

Russian Troops Ordered to Arrange for Monarch's Safe Journey Across Frontier---Cossacks Will Surrender to Nationalists.

(Times Leased Wire.)

St. Petersburg, July 15.—The foreign office to-day sent orders to the Russian troops stationed in Persia to arrange for the safe removal of the Shah across the frontier. This order is inferred to mean that the Shah is about to be forced to abdicate and flee the country.

Cossacks Cease Fighting.

Teheran, Persia, July 15.—Ordering the Cossacks to cease firing about noon to-day, Col. Liakhoff, commander of the forces which have been defending the city, indicated that he would surrender to the Nationalists. This means the overthrow of Shah Mohammed Ali and the establishment of a new Persian government under a constitution.

At daybreak to-day the Nationalist rebels, who invested the city two days ago and have been fighting their way toward the Shah's palace, renewed their furious attack upon the barricades held by the loyal Cossacks. The firing continued for several hours before Liakhoff ordered his men to cease.

The commander of the Shah's forces, it is understood, is now dealing with the leaders of the rebels, agreeing to surrender if his men are guaranteed protection and allowed to join the forces of the new government when it is established.

SEEKS TO QUASH CIVIC BY-LAW

APPLICATION AGAINST SUNDAY CLOSING RULE

Frank Higgins Has Given Notice to Council of Intention.

The fruit and candy sellers and tobacconists are not lying idle in face of the by-law recently passed by the city council which was designed to prevent them from doing business on Sundays. The application for a writ of mandamus applied for on behalf of A. Vaselatos having been postponed until the 21st inst., Mr. Higgins, acting for clients, has in the meantime instituted other proceedings in the form of an application to quash the by-law for reasons set forth. The following is a copy of the legal notice sent to the city council:

To the Corporation of the City of Victoria.

Gentlemen—I hereby give notice pursuant to section 90 of the "Municipal Clauses act," that I intend to apply to the Supreme Court of British Columbia after the expiration of 10 days from the giving of this notice to you, for a rule to show cause why sections 8 and 9 of by-law No. 620, passed by the municipal council of the corporation of the city of Victoria on the 14th day of June, 1909, intituled "A by-law relating to certain retail traders' licenses and to amend the revenue by-law," should not be quashed in whole or in part with costs, on the following grounds:

1. That no power is vested in the municipal council to enact such sections.

2. That said sections are inconsistent and repugnant to the provisions of the "Municipal Clauses act."

3. That the provisions of said sections are not impartial, they do not operate equally and indiscriminately between different classes of retail traders in the city of Victoria.

4. That said by-law is not impartial or equal in its operation, and the municipal council by the enactment and enforcement of said by-law discriminates against individual retail traders carrying on the same kind of business, inasmuch as the collector of the corporation of the city of Victoria on or about the 12th day of June, 1909, issued respectively to Kate Wenstendale, August Wentendale and Mrs. Keayes (who are retail vendors in stores of cigars, cigarettes, tobacco, fruit, confectionery and non-intoxicant beverages in the city of Victoria), retail traders' licences good from the 15th July, 1909, to the 15th January, 1910, inclusive without first requiring either of the said Kate Wenstendale, August Wenstendale and Mrs. Keayes to comply with all or any of the provisions of said sections 8 and 9 of said by-law, so that the said Kate Wenstendale, August Wenstendale and Mrs. Keayes were each authorized and are now empowered under the said licenses to keep open their stores and carry on their respective businesses on the Lord's day, commonly called Sunday, after the 15th July, 1909, while all other traders vending the same kind of merchandise as the said Kate Wenstendale, August Wenstendale and Mrs. Keayes must, if said by-law be valid, cease to carry on business on the Lord's day after the said 15th July, 1909.

VALIZZARIOS P. PAUL.

KILLED BY ENGINE.

Kingston, Ont., July 15.—George Vancouhen, 60 years of age, fishing off Kingston and Pembroke railway wharf in Cataraqui bay, was run down by an engine backing up and instantly killed. He was very deaf. He leaves a wife and two children.

FUEL OIL TO BE USED AT NAVY YARDS

Experiments Show That Coal Costs $20,000 More a Year.

(Times Leased Wire.)

Washington, D.C., July 15.—The navy department has been conducting comparative experiments in the use of fuel oil, Puget Sound coal and coal from other localities to ascertain which could be used with greatest economy at Puget Sound and Mare Island navy yards, and has found oil is most satisfactory. It was found that Puget Sound coal could be used in the power houses of these two station at much smaller cost than other coals, but that it would cost $20,000 more per year than fuel oil. The department states, however, that in case the price of oil advances to any marked degree during the year they will use Puget Sound coal.

EDUCATIONISTS MEET AT SEATTLE

President of Oregon Agricultural College on Problem of Country Schools.

(Times Leased Wire.)

Seattle, Wash., July 15.—The feature of to-night's session of the educational congress will be an address on "Moral and Religious Education," by Bishop Edwin E. Hughes, of San Francisco, former president of the Depaw University, of Indiana. Bishop Hughes is one of the most forceful and eloquent speakers on the public platform, and the educators are looking forward to his address with interest.

P. L. Campbell, president of the University of Oregon, will be chairman of the meeting.

That one of the greatest problems of education lies in the country school was the contention of Dr. Wm. J. Kerr, president of the Oregon Agricultural College, who spoke at the session of the congress last night. The meeting was devoted to rural schools, and was presided over by Edwin Twitmyer, of Bellingham.

WESTON REACHES END OF JOURNEY

Walks From New York to San Francisco in 105 Days, 5 Hours, 41 Minutes.

(Times Leased Wire.)

San Francisco, Cal., July 15.—In perfect form, Edward Payson Weston, the veteran pedestrian, arrived in San Francisco last night at 10:50 o'clock after his 4,000-mile tramp from New York.

The time consumed on the long journey was 105 days, 5 hours and 41 minutes. Starting on March 15th, the white-haired old athlete has maintained a gait approximately forty miles a day all the way from New York.

Weston contemplates a tramp to Seattle during the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition as soon as he is thoroughly rested from his transcontinental walk.

MAN STARVED TO DEATH.

Chicago, July 15.—Clarence Ruggles, a Denver teacher, who was found several days ago suffering from hysteria produced by hunger and exposure, died in a local hospital to-day.

Ruggles came to this city to take a teacher's examination. Failing to pass the tests he was unable to find employment, and slowly starved to death. He was found lying in a doorway and taken to a hospital.

SCORES INJURED IN STRIKE RIOTS

STATE CONSTABULARY ARRIVE ON SCENE

Several Clashes Between Car Company Employees and Strikebreakers.

(Times Leased Wire.)

Pittsburg, Pa., July 15.—Forty members of the state constabulary were rushed to McKee's rocks, six miles below Pittsburg to-day, to quell the rioting between the striking employees of the Pressed Steel Car Company and a force of strike breakers that has been in progress for the last 24 hours. The company made no effort to-day to open the plant and resume operations. While strikebreakers are present in great numbers, protected by the local authorities, in view of the angry demonstrations of hundreds of strikers and their friends and threats to storm the plant, the officials delayed throwing open the doors.

The strikers have surrounded the plant with hundreds of pickets. While several minor clashes between them and the guards occurred early to-day, none was seriously injured.

Estimates of the number of wounded in the three pitched battles that took place yesterday and last night are difficult to obtain. While no fatalities have been reported, it is believed that more than 100 men were wounded. With the exception of a dozen of those who were injured so seriously that they were removed to hospitals, the wounded were carried away by their comrades.

The strikers, most of whom are foreigners, claim that since a pooling system of pay has been introduced they have been receiving less money for the same number of hours. Last night the company attempted to bring strikebreakers by steamer to the works but the strikers, lining the banks of the river, hurled slag and bricks at them. The fusilade was returned by sheriffs on the boat.

Rioting was renewed soon after the arrival of the constabulary. One trooper was hurt seriously by a shower of bricks and was carried to a hospital. The constabulary finally succeeded in driving off the strikers.

At noon four thousand strikers and their sympathizers held a mass meeting in the lower section of McKee's rocks. The men were addressed in several languages by the speakers.

Following the arrest of six strikers, who were thought to have incited yesterday's riots, threats were made to dynamite the Schoenville plant of the Pressed Steel Car Company. The men were arrested during the clash that followed the arrival of the constabulary this morning. The soldiers fired over the heads of the strikers, causing them to break for cover.

BANKER ARRESTED.

Is Charged With Being Defaulter to Amount of $100,000.

New Orleans, July 15.—Wyatt H. Ingram, jr., an officer of the Hibernia Bank & Trust Company of this city, is under arrest to-day, charged with being a defaulter to the amount of $100,000. Ingram, who stood high in business and social circles of New Orleans, is said to have confessed his defalcation.

COMMISSIONERS ON WAY TO COAST

Professors Prince and Jordan to Investigate Fishery Matters.

(Special to the Times.)

Winnipeg, July 15.—Prof. Prince, of Ottawa, with Starr Jordan, of Leland Stanford University, Cal., members of the international fisheries commission, are in Winnipeg. They will proceed to Vancouver shortly, arriving at the height of the fishing season to outline the best methods to be followed by Canada and the United States for the protection of the vast salmon fisheries of the Fraser river, Straits of Georgia and Puget Sound.

DIES SUDDENLY ON SOUND STEAMER

Exertion of Running to Catch Boat Proves Fatal to Woman.

(Times Leased Wire.)

Seattle, Wash., July 15.—Mrs. Katherine H. May, aged 67, is dead to-day from the exertion of running to catch the steamer Monticello, which left Tacoma for Seattle yesterday afternoon. She caught the boat just as it was leaving the wharf, but she died before the steamer reached Seattle. The woman's son, Eyson, met the boat, but found his mother dead when the steamer docked.

Mrs. May was a very large woman, and her heart could not stand the strain of extra exertion caused by running to the boat.

POWERS ALONE CAN PREVENT HOSTILITIES

War Between Greece and Turkey Appears Inevitable If International Force is Withdrawn from Island of Crete.

(Times Leased Wire.)

Berlin, July 15.—Only continued occupation of the Island of Crete by the four powers—Germany, Great Britain, France and Italy—can prevent a declaration of war between Greece and Turkey early in August, according to inside information obtained from the German foreign office to-day.

This information is to the effect that private advices have been received from Constantinople, Athens and Canea that the four powers, under whose guidance and protection the islands government has been administered for the past twelve years, are the only hope of preventing a clash, and as they have determined to withdraw their troops from Crete this month, war seems inevitable.

The Turks feel, on one side, that the surrender of their suzerainty over Crete would endanger the stability of the present government. In Greece, on the other side, feeling is so strong that, if Crete's demand for a union with the Hellenes is disregarded, the fall of King George's dynasty is almost a certainty.

Indications are to-day that the fighting will begin on the mainland, over the pretext of the driving of Greek bands off the Turkish frontier, but it is expected that it will extend to the island before hostilities cease.

Both Turkey and Greece have been concentrating troops for several weeks on the Thessalian border, and both are ready for the immediate transportation of formidable forces to the disputed island.

The Mohammedan inhabitants of Crete, numbering about 30,000 out of a total population of 300,000, say they are in momentary danger of massacre, and have appealed to the powers for protection.

Bulgaria's Protest.

Sofia, Bulgaria, July 15.—Czar Ferdinand had a hand in causing the dispute over Greek bands on the Turkish frontier which threatens to cause war between Turkey and Greece, it was learned to-day, and rumors are afloat that the Bulgarian government would seize the opportunity offered by such a clash to annex Macedonia.

Bulgaria, it was learned to-day, recently made a secret protest against the treatment of Bulgarian residents of Macedonia and intimated that Czar Ferdinand could not much longer suffer such conditions to exist. It was represented to the Turkish government that the murder of Bulgarians there by roving Greeks had become frequent of late.

It was urged that the Turkish government was entirely too backward in punishing these offenders, and that while it was not the wish to embarrass the young Turks, some action must be taken. This forced Turkey into driving all Greeks off the frontier and caused the immediate quarrel over which Turkey and Greece may fight to settle their long standing dispute over Crete.

Raising Funds for Greece.

San Francisco, Cal., July 15.—The discovery that money is being raised in the local Greek colony to be sent to Greece, leads to the belief here to-day that despite the denials of the Athens government, active preparations for war with Turkey are being made.

The money, it is learned, was raised by Father Marcaronis, who was recently made a "Chevalier" by King George, in recognition of his efforts along that line. A. Ballanos, president of the local Greek colony, assisted the priest in his work, and together they are said to have collected several thousand dollars in San Francisco alone. Similar collections, it is said, are being made throughout the country. The Greeks are very reticent regarding the prospect of war with Turkey and the Turks adopt a similar attitude.

R. de Fontana, the Greek consul here, to-day received the following message from Minister Conomilas at Athens:

"There is nothing serious at present. Will notify you in due time in case of necessity."

Taken in the language of diplomacy, this means that while no open hostilities have been declared, a rupture between Greece and Turkey may be expected at any time.

Patriotic Greeks were calling at the consular office all day to-day, volunteering in event of war. There are now 5,000 Greeks in San Francisco and 350,000 in the United States.

ELECTRIFICATION OF SOUTHERN PACIFIC

Electricity to Be Used Instead of Steam on Sacramento Division.

(Times Leased Wire.)

New York, July 15.—Officials of the Southern Pacific railroad are to-day awaiting a cablegram from E. H. Harriman, authorizing the placing of orders aggregating $13,000,000 for the electrification of the Sacramento division of that system.

It was stated here that the cablegram is hourly expected. One reason for making the change from steam to electricity is that steam locomotives have always been hampered by steep grades, snow and snowsheds in the haul from Reno, Nev., to Sacramento.

SAILS FOR WRANGEL IN OPEN LAUNCH

George Pott Starts From Aberdeen in 28-foot Boat.

(Times Leased Wire.)

Aberdeen, Wash., July 15.—Braving the waves of the Pacific in an open gasoline launch, 28 feet in length, unaccompanied by a companion and provisioned and equipped for a ten-day run, is the feat which is being attempted by George Pott, who left yesterday for Wrangel, Alaska, in the gasoline launch Dutch.

After leaving the northern coast of Vancouver Island Pott must navigate the length of Queen Charlotte Sound, and will there be fully exposed to the sweep of the Pacific. Seafaring men regard the trip as extremely hazardous.

Pott expects to accomplish the trip in a week. He will spend the summer fishing in the vicinity of Wrangel, and expects to return in the fall.

NIAGARA RIVER DAM.

Buffalo, July 15.—Members of the national waterways commission held an all-day session here yesterday, most of the time being devoted to the proposed construction of a dam across the Niagara river to raise the water level of the upper lakes. No decision was reached in the matter, which went over to a meeting to be held on August 3rd.

MYSTERIOUS SHOOTING AFFRAY AT PORTLAND

Man May Die From Wound—Police Believe Woman Figured in Case.

(Times Leased Wire.)

Portland, Ore., July 15.—While R. F. Brackett, member of the firm of Brackett and Meyers, electrical engineers, is thought to be dying to-day the police are engaged in what looks like a hopeless task in trying to unravel the mystery surrounding a shooting affray in which he received a bullet wound in the left abdominal region.

Brackett insists that two men ran from behind a tree late last night, while he was walking on Yamhill street, and commanded him to throw up his hands. He says that a moment later one of the men shot him.

An entirely different phase is given to the affair by three witnesses. They agree with the theory of the police that the woman Brackett is supposed to have met near the scene of the shooting figured in the subsequent developments.

R. E. Dent, an employee of some stables in the neighborhood, told the police that a man resembling Brackett met a woman on the street an hour before he was shot. Attracted by the report of the revolver, Dent looked out and saw two well dressed men run past.

Mrs. Ward, who resides near the corner where the shooting occurred, says that when she rushed from her back door, she heard some one say: "Well, I guess you've got me this time." Brackett is supposed to have made this remark. His wife is at present in Walla Walla.

CRUSHED TO DEATH.

Winnipeg, July 15.—One Galician is dead and a Galician and a Scotsman named James McLeod seriously injured as the result of an accident at the G. T. P. yards Tuesday. They were crushed by a shunting train. The Galician died Wednesday morning, but the others, though seriously injured, will likely live.

INSTANTLY KILLED.

Woodstock, Ont., July 15.—Harry Campbell, of Molson's Bank staff here, while returning from a football match at Shakespeare in an automobile was instantly killed by jumping from the machine before it had stopped. He landed on his head and died without regaining consciousness.

THIRTEEN MEN LOSE THEIR LIVES

SUBMARINE BOAT SINKS AFTER COLLISION

Another Vessel Also Damaged During Manoeuvres in English Channel.

(Times Leased Wire.)

Sheerness, England, July 15.—One British sub-marine boat was wrecked and sank to the bottom of the English channel, causing the loss of 13 lives, and another was seriously damaged in a collision to-day, according to wireless dispatches received here.

The C 17 is said to be hurrying to Yarmouth to have serious damages repaired.

Later it was ascertained that thirteen men were drowned when the submarine C 11 went to the bottom, and that both the C 11 and the C 17 were damaged by a collision with a third vessel, the name of which has not been learned. The collision occurred during the naval manoeuvres in the channel this morning.

Official Statement.

Sheerness, Eng., July 15.—(Later.)—An official statement given out by the authorities this afternoon says that Lieuts. Vrodie and Watkins and Seaman Stripes were rescued from the Cail when she sank and that 13 seamen were drowned.

It is believed the freight steamer Eddy-Stone caused the disaster by crossing the line of the flotilla as the sub-marines were aligning to enter the Thames. All other vessels in the flotilla have been accounted for.

DISAPPOINTED LOVER SHOOTS HIMSELF

Parents Cut Off His Allowance Because of Infatuation for Actress.

(Times Leased Wire.)

New York, July 15.—John Balside, son of a multi-millionaire exporter of sugar at Havana, shot and killed himself to-day because he was disappointed in his love for an actress in the eastern "Merry Widow" company.

Balside was occupying a cheap room on East Fourteenth street when he committed suicide. The young man met one of the actresses in the "Merry Widow" company in Havana. He became infatuated and followed the troupe about the United States for months. His parents begged him to return to his palatial home at Havana, but he had became dissipated during his wanderings and refused to heed their requests. Finally the family decided to cut off his allowance in the hope that he would reform.

Without money the youth was compelled to cease paying attentions to the actress and he grew despondent and to-day ended his life.

GIRL TAKES POISON.

Ends Life Because Clothes Were Not as Pretty as Those of School Mates.

Eugene, Ore., July 15.—Despondent because her clothes were not as pretty as those worn by one of her school mates, 15-year-old Ruth Seales swallowed the contents of a bottle of strychnine Sunday evening and died three hours later. After an investigation by the coroner and physician, it was proved that the girl had committed suicide. None of the family knew of the girl's act until her corpse was found.

FLOUR ADVANCES.

Minneapolis, July 15.—Flour is quoted from $6.45 to $6.60, five cents under the price during Patton's May deal, f. o. b. here to-day. The advance in price is the result of the advance in the wheat market.

MERGER OF UNIONS OF RAILWAY EMPLOYEES

New Department of Federation of Labor Embraces 2,500,000 Men.

(Times Leased Wire.)

Chicago, July 15.—Organization of a railway employees department of the American Federation of Labor was completed to-day by the merger of 25 unions of American, Canadian and Mexican railway men or unions affiliated with railway employees. The new department embraces 2,500,000 union employees on 70,000 miles of railway.

The new department will be conducted by a separate governing body from the American Federation of Labor. Temporary officers selected are H. B. Perham, president, and D. W. Roderick, secretary-treasurer.

Embracing the various departments of railway employees, the new organization includes clerks, telegraphers, blacksmiths, etc.

NORTHERN INDIANS TELL OF GRIEVANCES

Commission Has Completed Its Investigations at Hazelton.

(Special to the Times.)

Hazelton, B. C., July 15.—Indian Commissioner Stewart, of Ottawa, who came here accompanied by Superintendent Vowell, of Victoria, and Chief Constable O'Connell, of the Dominion force, to inquire into the grievances of the local Indians arising out of the settlement by white settlers of crown lands outside of the Indian reserves, which the Indians had been using for themselves for generations, completed the hearing of the trouble last night after a two-days' session. The proceedings were confined to a hearing of the Indian grievances and their demands for redress. Each tribe was represented by a spokesman, who presented each tribe's troubles and demands in turn, each spokesman practically repeating what the first one set forth.

Basing their contention on the assumption that all the land belonged to them to be heredity and that whites had taken it without conquest or remuneration, they practically asked that the whole country be surrendered to them.

This would involve dispensing with the present system of reserves, the establishment of their ancient tribal laws and customs for the government of the territory and the forfeiture of all rights, claims and interests of the whites, etc., practically the establishing of the conditions existing before the white man came among them.

While the claims were made separately for the surrender of each tribal chief's "lands of his forefathers," collectively it would involve the entire country.

In support of their contentions that they have not been justly dealt with in the land questions, they cited promises made to them of large land concessions involving hundreds of thousands of acres lying along the main valley of the Skeena and Bulkley rivers, by former commissioners who had been sent to them in connection with the affairs in early days. They asked the commissioner for his decision in the matter, and on being assured that nothing could be done till he had submitted his report to the government at Ottawa, they wanted him to issue an order forbidding any further location of land by the whites until such time as their claims were settled.

Some of them, on being told this was beyond the power of the commissioner, grew somewhat hostile and declared that they would have to prevent further locations themselves if the government would not.

This sentiment was disapproved, however, by the cooler heads, and the matter dropped.

A few days will be put in visiting the villages of the tribes along the Skeena, and the party will then return to Victoria and Ottawa and submit their report for the government's action.

RUSH FOR LAND.

Thousands Register Homesteads on Flathead Indian Reservation.

Missoula, Mont., July 15.—Precisely at 12:01 o'clock this morning the Flathead Indian reservation, comprising 750,000 acres of land, was thrown open to registration, and before daylight the thirteen notaries who kept their offices open to take care of the rush had recorded 2,500 names.

Before nightfall it is expected that the number will be increased to 5,000. The throngs swarming about the registration booths are kept in good spirits by a street band that furnishes plenty of music.

It is estimated that fully 50,000 will have registered before August 9th, the last day of registration.

Lever Brothers, Toronto, will send you free a cake of their famous Plantol toilet soap, if you mention this paper.

(Times Leased Wire.)

Philadelphia, July 15.—A number of persons were killed by the collapse of a building here to-day.

The walls of the Archambault building, which was being renovated, fell, carrying down ten workmen and burying a score of pedestrians.

At 3 o'clock this afternoon twelve bodies had been recovered, and twenty persons seriously injured, were in the hospitals.

It is believed, judging from the groans that arise from the debris, that many persons remain buried.

THREE DROWN IN LAKE DESCHENES

Victims Cling to Upturned Boat But Finally Sink Exhausted.

(Special to the Times.)

Ottawa, Ont., July 14.—Jennie and Dorothy Green, sisters, 32 and 23 years of age, waitresses at the Royal Victoria, were drowned at Aylmer early this morning and with them their companion, Dorion.

The girls who belonged to Richmond, Ont., went for a boating trip last night when the boat upset. They clung to it till 2 o'clock this morning when the three were drowned. Their repeated cries for help were heard by people on shore and passing boats, but the vicinity was so used to people shouting in boats that no notice was taken.

Later reports of the drowning accident indicate that arrests are likely to follow:

When the residents at last gave help they found two young men named Loyer and Guertin, clinging to the upturned boat. They stated the girls had succumbed at about 2 a. m.

Conflicting stories are told as to the circumstances but it appears that the two men named and two others named Cravelle and Dorion had been quarreling over the women and there had been much drinking. The parties crossed the lake to the Ontario side, where apparently they renewed their quarreling and were returning when the catastrophe occurred, the lake being calm at the time.

WINNIPEG MORALITY.

T. Mayne Daly Defends Action of Police Commission.

(Special to the Times.)

Winnipeg, Man., July 15.—T. Mayne Daly, police commissioner and police magistrate, replied this morning to certain insinuations which have been made regarding the methods of himself, the commission and the police in administering the morality department, in the course of which he arraigned the moral condition of this city, and pronounced a sensational indictment of conditions which have arisen since segregation was abandoned five years ago. The occasion arose in connection with cases against some women caught in the police dragnet of last Saturday, which has led to much criticism of the apparent determination of the police to establish new segregation districts.

Referring to the vile insinuation he said had been made, Mr. Daly said it was time the Winnipeg public knew the facts of the cases. In January, 1904, a raid had been made on the segregated district of Thomas street, and at the time many people feared that it would result in the city being flooded with women out of control of the police. This had proved unhappily the case. Mr. Daly quoted some alarming figures in support. Since 1904 885 illegitimate children had been born in the city; 124 in 1905, 175 in 1906, 220 in 1907, 251 in 1908, and 115 in the first six months of the present year. Hundreds of young girls, said Mr. Daly, were going to the devil, not in houses of ill-repute, but on street corners and in their own homes.

NEW OFFICERS OF COUNCIL OF WOMEN

Mrs. Lillian M. Hollister, of Detroit, is Chosen as President.

(Times Leased Wire.)

Seattle, Wash., July 15.—The morning session of the National Council of Women of the United States, which is in convention at the Plymouth church to-day, was enlivened by the election of officers.

Following the custom of the organization which limits the president to two terms, Mrs. Mary Wood Swift, of Berkeley, Cal., was made the fifth honorary president.

The following are the newly-elected officers up to date: President, Mrs. Lillian M. Hollister, of Detroit; vice-president, Mrs. Kate Waller Barrett, of Washington, D. C.

Mrs. Hollister is the supreme commander of the Ladies of the Maccabees of the World, and is one of the foremost workers for the advancement of women.

Mrs. Flo Jameson Miller, of Wilmington, Ills., was elected corresponding-secretary, and Mrs. Pauline Steinem, of Toledo, Ohio, as recording secretary, at the meeting this afternoon.

Mrs. M. Josie Nelson, of Union City, Ind., the present treasurer, will retain her place.

CIVIL SERVICE COMPETITIONS

PROF. SHORTT GIVES INTERESTING ADDRESS

Features of New System at Ottawa—Address by J. L. Hughes.

There was a large gathering at Assembly hall last night to hear two of the great men of Canada, Professor Shortt and James L. Hughes, give addresses. The meinbers of the Dominion Educational Association were all there, and a large number of citizens availed themselves of the opportunity to attend. Men and women who had heard of the fame of the speakers helped to fill the spacious hall and none were disappointed.

Professor Shortt is a student of economics and his writings are well known. He is one of the members of the recently appointed civil service commission which is charged with the duty of doing away with the old patronage system which has been in vogue for so many years under the Dominion government and replacing it by a system of competitive examinations. It was for the purpose of unfolding his scheme and asking for the cooperation of the teachers in providing men fitted for the positions which were to be filled that he appeared last night. His talk was business like and to the point. He showed that he had a full grasp of the situation and that the Dominion government could not have made a better choice of a commissioner.

The meeting was presided over by Dr. Alex Robinson, superintendent of education for the province.

Dr. Robinson, in introducing Prof. Shortt, said he needed no introduction to the people in any part of the province.

Professor Shortt said the subject on which he was to address them was practically new and was worrying many people. He had to transfer the worry to those present to help to bear it.

The problem was to appoint the junior officers in the civil service by means of competitive exams. The question resolved itself into how were they to set a series of questions and so examine the papers as to do justice to candidates, and so that they might be distributed throughout the country. A short time ago Mr. La Rochelle and himself were appointed a commission to arrange for competitive examinations to provide for the various positions below that of deputy minister. The commission was appointed by the government, but not removable by the government. They were to pass upon every promotion and to issue a certificate for every increase in salary. They were also to report upon every department and to undertake any other duties assigned to them. The automatic duties were found to be more than enough. They were to commence with the inside service but the work would be extended to the outside service, such as to post office, which might be brought in by order-in-council.

In the inside service the civil servants were to be graded in three grades, and each of these subdivided. Further, there was a lower grade composed of messengers, sorters, etc, and lower still the laborers.

The third division was separate from the two higher and somewhat overlapped them. Those not expecting to rise higher than the third division could begin at $500 and rise as high as $1,200. In the second division salaries commenced at $800 and rose to $1,600. First class salaries ran all the way from $1,600 to $4,000, according to the grade and length of service.

There were three separate examinations on which candidates must qualify. The grade for third class was about the same as for half way through the High school.

The second division took the work about the same as was done in the second year university course. No graduate of a university would be allowed to qualify unless he or she took the examination as the examination is of a competitive character. The number of positions to be filled will be advertised and filled from those who qualify. The ones taking the highest rank are the ones appointed. For this reason it was found impossible to allow a college degree to give standing. The plan adopted was that used in England.

In that way the confusion was got rid of which otherwise would result.

Every candidate would have to be between the ages of 18 and 35 years. At Ottawa they found between two and three thousand candidates on the waiting list, and one thousand among the appointees were not qualified by examination.

When a position is now vacant the necessary qualification is stated. A candidate suitable for the position is taken and given two months' probation. The deputy minister then may report against the candidate. The case is looked into and if it is found that the person is not suitable he is either transferred or allowed to leave the service.

As to the vexed question of sex the initial salaries he thought were not good enough to attract the best young men. The candidates from the big cities were so far nearly all females. The men came from the country districts and the Maritime Provinces. (Laughter.) The result was they got only the leftovers from the business houses.

Young women not having taken all the opportunities of life and not having obtained the suffrage were necessarily at a disadvantage. Plenty of women qualified.

In Europe they had no trouble in getting men. In a country like this a salary of only $800 with nothing of a speculative character ahead, did not appeal to the young man. In the service the prospects were too definite. The man would be too much tied up. A certain monthly income with a sure future looked well in bad times, but not in times like these.

The reason they could not find more positions for women in the higher branches was because the work was not suitable for the ordinary woman. Then the higher positions were filled by promotion and could not be filled by women. Men would not work under them if they were appointed. If the women were not promoted the men would have to be promoted over their heads, and they would not have received the necessary training. There were good offices going a begging because there were not enough men willing to start at as low as $800 a year. He wished to clear up some misconceptions. The chances for promotion were great because of the prospects of growth of the country. The governmental control of positions in Canada were proportionally to population twice as many as in the United States, so that the expansion of the service would be very rapid. This was due to the fact that there were more diversified powers assigned under the constitution to the federal government in Canada than in the United States. Reorganization meant the making of new positions. The opportunities were very great for the young man entering now. In commercial life there was every opportunity a man could want and the same applied to the civil service. The qualified man would get into the position calling for the qualifications.

There would be also special service for which special experts were required. There were two methods of getting an outsider. One was for the department to nominate and the commission to investigate. Another method was for the department to ask the commission for a man with certain technical qualifications. Such a man would be advertised for and from the candidates the successful one would be selected on probation like the others. The examination would be any adequate test which would indicate their qualifications. A man should have a general education as well as a training in the particular branch of work.

MILLIONS OF CELLS.

The human body is composed of countless millions of cells. These cells are constantly dying and new ones are being created. Dead cells are removed from the blood by the bowels, kidneys and skin. These great eliminating organs filter this waste matter from the blood, and thus purify the blood.

If there is Constipation, or non-action of the bowels—if the kidneys are strained or weakened—if there is defective skin action—then the dead cells are not removed from the body. The blood thus becomes loaded with impurities, and we suffer for it.

The only way to purify the blood is to cure the skin, bowels and kidneys. When these organs are healthy and doing their work as nature intended them to do it, waste matter is promptly removed and the blood is kept pure and rich. "Fruit-a-tives"—the famous fruit liver tablets—act directly on the skin, the bowels and the kidneys. "Fruit-a-tives" purify the blood because they keep the whole body strong, vigorous and healthy. Fifty cents a box; 6 for $2.50, or trial box 25c. At dealers or from Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

VANCOUVER MAKES COMMENDABLE EXHIBIT

Display of Drawing and Brush Work at Assembly Hall.

The splendid art exhibit of the public and high schools of Vancouver was hung Tuesday afternoon in Assembly hall. In the smaller outer hall some very fine samples of original designs from the high schools of Vancouver are shown, while directly opposite is the work of the primary classes of Victoria. The arrangement is rather unfortunate, as those who do not take the trouble to notice the different grades will be apt to make uncomplimentary comparisons.

In the Vancouver high school display there are some very clever costume studies from Ivanhoe. Some colored decorative panels are also worthy of special note, and a stencilled design on coarse canvass by Miss Helen Kholler is very handsome.

Exhibits from the First to Fifth Reader classes cover most comprehensively the various branches, embracing geometrical, nature, object, pattern, direct brush work and original designs. One and all show not only careful, painstaking training by the teachers, but wonderful cleverness and originality on the part of pupils.

The Fifth Reader class also shows a number of nature study books with a series of studies, which will well repay inspection.

A novel and most commendable feature of the Vancouver exhibit is a splendid sample of direct pen and brush work done by the quick muscular movement. The different pen movements are first shown, and these are followed by the applied movements, both in penmanship and drawing from models.

Another rather novel feature is the exhibition of models from which drawings are made. These, the pupils make for themselves. In the nature study, mounted specimens of butterflies and beetles are hung beside the copies of them.

In the First Primer work are handsome panels of cutting and folding paper work, and in the Second Primer exhibit a direct brush work study of the story of Hiawatha is a wonderful piece of work to be done by young children.

Miscellaneous panels worthy of special note are done by the Oriental students, and another of Indian heads and objects from the different city schools is particularly good.

The showing of maps gives ample proof of the same careful, systematic training displayed in the other lines, and the exhibit as a whole is most commendable and praiseworthy.

OREGON'S EXHIBIT.

Will Probably Be Removed to Salem and Made Part of State Fair.

Seattle, Wash., July 15.—Practically the entire exhibit of the state of Oregon at the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition, with whole sections of the interior decorations of the building, will be removed to Salem, Ore., and made a permanent part of the Oregon state fair, according to plans that were discussed by the Oregon state commissioners during the visit of Governor Benson to the exposition. The governor will probably suggest to the next Oregon legislature the idea of taking the Seattle display to Salem. It is believed that at the close of the exposition, the Oregon building will be presented to the state university.

BOODLERS LOSE THEIR APPEAL

Lower Court Sustained, But Cases Will Be Carried to Higher Tribunal.

Philadelphia, July 15.—The Superior Court yesterday affirmed the decision on the lower court in the capitol graft cases. It is probable that the cases will now be carried to the Supereme Court.

The cases grew out of the construction and equipment of Pennsylvania's new $10,000,0000 capitol building. Five men connected with the contracts for the building and its furnishings were convicted of graft and appealed to the Supreme Court. The decision having gone against them, it is expected that they will lose no time in carrying the cases up to the higher tribunal.

Some of the most flagrant instances of graft ever heard of in this country were alleged in connection with the capitol trials. It was alleged that furniture, such as chairs, bootblack stands, desks, etc., were paid for by the square foot at exorbitant prices.

LUMBERMEN ELECT OFFICERS FOR YEAR

E. Hines, of Chicago, is New President of National Association.

Seattle, July 15.—The National Lumber Manufacturers' Association met yesterday at the Hoo Hoo House on the exposition grounds and chose New Orleans as the place of their next meeting.

They elected the following officers: President, Edward Hines of Chicago; first vice-president, E. G. Griggs of Tacoma; second vice-president, Wm. D. Stillwell of Savannah, Ga.; treasurers, J. A. Freeman of St. Louis. The board of governors will elect a secretary.

To-day the delegates will be the guests of the Port Blakely Mill Company on an excursion on the steamer Monticello, to the navy yard and other points on the Sound. Friday they will go to Tacoma and on Saturday will visit Portland, prior to returning to their homes in the east and south.

PROF. SHORTT, RECRUITING SERGEANT.

As if British Columbia has not had enough trouble in keeping the ranks of her army of teachers up to the standard without Professor Shortt butting in and encouraging desertion by enlarging in his own peculiarly eloquent way upon the attractions of the Dominion civil service. Annually our pedagogic forces are decimated most alarmingly, or otherwise, by the slings and arrows of that sly dog Cupid and by the allurements of more remunerative callings, yet along comes the chief of the civil service commission, takes up a position right in the midst of this already distracted force of Commander Robinson, and encourages further defections by a fascinating discourse upon the attractions of the "inside civil service" at Ottawa. But we observe that the learned Professor took good care not to hold up the reverse side of the picture. And there is a reverse side, as we know from converse with some of the toil-worn slaves of an exacting government. The chief of the commission said nothing about recent additions to the working hours of the "inside" servants. He did not tell his eager audience that the hours for luncheon had been reduced from two to one and a half (or something like that); that the civil servants are now expected to be down to business as early in the morning, at least, as their alleged lords and masters the Ministers; that the privilege of "knocking off" for an hour or two every day during the summer for the purpose of playing at bowls or at cricket upon the green sward of the parliament grounds has been withdrawn; nor did he mention several other legitimate grievances which have excited the indignation of the august nobs of Parliament Hill, such as the repotted extinguishment of the exquisite delight of "cutting" the Ministers in the exclusive aristocratic set of the capital and blackballing them when they apply for membership in the very select clubs.

The truth is that there is a fly in every ointment. In the case of the "inside" civil service there is a great, big blue bottle always buzzing. If Professor Shortt were as frank and candid as all persons in British Columbia except politicians are expected to be, he would not try to entice our school teachers away upon pretensions which are obviously misleading. There is but one calling in this distressful world in which there are no disagreeable features, in which life is one glad, sweet song, in which there is nothing to do but recline in beatific meditation, and that profession modesty or selfishness forbids us to designate.

TORONTO FLAG INCIDENT.

American opinion, that is American opinion which is of any value, on the subject of that "flag incident" in Toronto, is exactly what might be expected considering the circumstances of the case. As expressed in the better class of American journals, it is substantially in harmony with Canadian opinion as given expression in such newspapers as the Toronto Star, which we quoted yesterday. Neither in the United States nor in Canada is it treated as a matter for international controversy nor diplomatic treatment. It is regarded simply as the act of a company of idle or drunken boors, whose manners are of the gutters or the slums. Unfortunately the possession of wealth, especially in the United States, does not involve the possession of good manners and a fine conception of the ordinary decencies and courtesies of life. That proposition has been demonstrated in other countries than Canada. There is not much more to be said on the subject, however, and it may well be dismissed and forgotten with the following from the New York Times:

"Were it not for the multiplicity of details, not easy to invent, which were given in the dispatches telling about the maltreatment of a British flag up in Toronto on Wednesday by what is described as 'a party of American tourists' the yarn could be dismissed as either wholly false or a wild exaggeration of a trivial accident. Forced to admit that something of the kind probably happened, that a flag really was dragged through the mud with offensive intention, one can still protest that the fellows who did it were neither Americans nor tourists in any representative or legitimate sense.

"They may have come from the United States, but they belonged to the great international brotherhood of vicious imbeciles which is distributed impartially through all countries and belongs to none any more than does the primordial slime of every sea to any one of them. There are roughs in every great city that would be capable of committing the acts reported, simply in the hope of starting a row. There is a type, known the world over, of the college boy, unlicked cubs with no sense and little hope of ever developing any, that might think it funny to annoy and disgust people in such a way. The idle rich anywhere might supply a few half-wit degenerates for whom such dull jesting might be possible; but for the Canadians to give the episode even an instant's consideration as a wrong suffered at the hands of 'Americans' would be a piece of folly so grotesque as to be unpardonable.

"Why the Torontonians refrained from an immediate and proper, because effective, action in the case is more than we can understand. They might have been sure that real Americans—the kind with an honest claim to the name and represented by President Taft and Governor Hughes when talking to and about Canadians at the Champlain celebrations—would not have objected to anything Toronto did, so long as it did not involve the sending of flag-defiling reptiles back into United States territory. Bloodshed, of course, would have emphasized contempt unduly by treating it as indignation, but anything cised within the large limits of reason would have been permissible, and, with a hinterland so chilly and so extensive as the Canadians have to the north of them, they ought without trouble to have found a place to put such cattle where they would annoy civilized folk no more for some time. The neighborhood of the Great Slave Lake would have done finely, and there would have been no anxious inquiries from this side the line as what had become of those as happily lost to memory as to sight."

The American republic set up a Spanish republic in Cuba, conferring upon the people of that long-time unfortunate isle the right to enjoy political liberty and pursue happiness in their own peculiar way. And, just to show how thankless such people can be, the Cubans are now talking of declaring war against the United States and throwing off some imaginary yoke. Surely it cannot be that any strings were attached to the triumphal car of Cuban independence. It may be necessary for Uncle Sam to administer a spanking to his fiery-tempered political step-child.

The Inland Sentinel of Kamloops has commenced the issue of a daily edition, the first number of which appeared on Monday last. It is a very bright and newsy issue, too, and should receive the generous support of the people of British Columbia's inland empire. The venture of our enterprising contemporary indicates that the interior is progressing. The Times wishes the Sentinel an abundant measure of success in the more ambitious field upon which it has entered with great spirit and determination.

It is not likely that any one seriously desires to see the stately marble columns of the Parthenon at Athens imitated in British Columbia timber on the summit of Beacon Hill. Although the design of Architect Wilson looks quite attractive on paper, the finished work would after all be merely a shed. Victoria has one such wreck of misdirected enthusiasm already in the derelict bathing pavilion on Dallas road.

* * *

Prof. Adam Shortt evidently is not aware that the popular policy in this province is to "fight Ottawa," or he would have been more careful in his remarks to our teachers.

What Other People Think

BEACON HILL "PANTHENON."

To the Editor:—When the microbe of midsummer madness suggested desecrating the beauties of Beacon Hill with a tumorous monstrosity in the shape of an asinine imitation of the Panthenon, I was in hopes that the spell of cooler weather would have proved destructive of the annual silly season and saved me the trouble of applying an anti-septic in the shape of common sense; unfortunately, the prevailing winds have wafted the bacteria onto the front and editorial columns of the Colonist and require exterminating before the disease spreads.

Almost every city has its exhibit of structural folly—the Tower of Babel being the earliest on record—but our suggested folly had for its prototype the forestry building, of Portland—a building useful in its original conception and purpose, but now a white (or black) elephant, very occasionally used for public gatherings; more generally used as a certain convenience for night-hawks, judging from the aroma. In ratio to population, that building is considerably nearer the centre of Portland city than our suggested folly is to the centre of Victoria.

The arguments advanced by the promoters and the Colonist for the erection of this absurdity are manifold and misleading—little bits of gilding to hide the gingerbread. I will remove a few:

As an advertisement of our timber resources it would be in the wrong place; such publicity is required in the centres from which we can expect to draw lumber users and capitalists—the capitalist or lumberman arrived in or living in Victoria are already reached, a log building will not influence them further, they will want to see the goods—the actual goods they desire to buy.

As a hall for public gatherings or conventions it is too far from the heart of the city; such halls should be in the very centre of all lines of transit to effect their greatest good.

The editor of the Colonist suggests "that a broom-clad hill, surmounted with a massive structure, would be a majestic picture." Ye gods! Did ever art receive such wrecking? Hide Thy face, Jehovah, and let the editor step up, for he hath got the merry widow hat as a crowning piece to better Thy handiwork.

The same editorial suggests: "It (the imitation) should be surmounted with a powerful light, which would send its beams far out to sea." Stick to thy pen, Oh, scribe! and leave marine matters for mariners—your light in that position would be a nautical irritant, and quickly snuffed by the powers that be.

Regarding the $75,000 which such a structure would inevitably cost before being completed, i fthere is that amount looking for investment for the betterment of our city, throw it into the streets, it will do far more good.

In conclusion, I humbly apologize to Dr. Helmcken for not appreciating the wisdom of his protest in regard to the bowling green. Our respected and venerable citizen saw further than the younger generation; but I trust that generation, especially those who, like myself, have a love for open, unconfaminated Beacon Hill, will veto this foolish proposal. A defence league, composed of a few citizens, could easily stop such mad desecration, by the use of regular legal means.

ARTHUR DAVIES.

O, DALLAS ROAD.

(With humble apologies to Mr. Arbuckle Shanks, who writes in yesterday's Colonist).

O, Dallas road! O, Dallas road!
With all thy subtle charm,
The hours, not few, absorbed by you
My wakened soul alarm;
Thy breakers high with booming cry
Allure me, yet I fear,
For through the haze and mist and daze
Those Dallas lights appear.

O, Dallas road! O, Dallas road!
That time with thee is blest,
When day is done, and red-faced sun
Sinks sleepy to his rest.
The gathering poets drink all in,
All, in their moods, reflect
The glory of the passing hours,
Till Jim fails to connect.

Then, Dallas road!, O, Dalals road!
When stilled the breakers lie,
The ocean like a silvery plain
Beneath a golden sky,
Some poet must the haven leave—
Some Irish bard or Manx—
The last car stops? His jewelled words Arbuckle to it!" Shanks!

THE IMPERIAL PRESS CONFERENCE.

BRITAIN'S "WELCOME HOME."

(No. 9.)

In all that is said and written of the great conference which has just closed, the comprehensive character of the provision made for the entertainment of the delegates and their lady friends cannot be too strongly recognized and emphasized, and with it must also be bracketed the supurb organization which caused everything to more so smoothly that the delegates never had occasion to worry over even the smallest details.

The promoters evidently intended that their visitors should obtain an animate idea of what is most attractive in England's social life and to ensure that nothing was left undone. The delegates met all the leading men of politics and of letters, not only at the formal discussions at the foreign office, but at luncheon in the Commons, at tea on the terrace, at the clubs and in the galleries of the House. The King and Queen relaxed their ordinary custom so far as to receive and shake hands with their overseas subjects at the reception given at Marlborough House by the Prince and Princess of Wales. Receptions at the Duke of Wellington's, at Lord Salisbury's, at the Duke of Sutherland's, at the foreign office, at Lord Lansdowne's and at half a dozen of the other centres of hospitality in London gave the guests an opportunity of meeting many whom under no other circumstances they could have conversed with. Private entertainment at numerous other homes helped to enlarge this experience. The newspaper magnates of London, Lord Brenham, Lord Northcliffe, C. Arthur Pearson and Frank Lloyd entertained at week-ends at their country homes with their ideal surroundings. Not a day for three weeks passed without its luncheon, its tea and its dinner—often its breakfast and sometimes its reception. The luncheon given by Mr. Balfour at the Consjitutional Club and by the Lord Mayor at the Mansion House were each in their way unique.

An illustration of how far everyone contributed to make these visits enjoyable may be here mentioned. Mr. Friswell, manager of the Standard Motor Company, placed 30 motor cars at the disposal of the delegates during their ten days in London free of charge. No matter whether the delegates had a meeting or a dinner, the cars stood in readiness and conveyed them swiftly to their destination.

When the party were ready to leave Sheffield to tour the Peak country to Manchester these same cars waited them at the door, having been driven up from London that morning.

A similar illustration of thoughtfulness was given by the Daimler Car Company of Coventry. Forty of their cars took the whole party from Coventry through the most delightful of rural England, through Leamington and old Banbury with its cross to Oxford. Couriers on motor bicycles accompanied the cavalcade to take any telegraphic message, and reserve cars followed in case of accident. Near Edge Hill, where there is a hill climb, trifling in comparison with those of Goldstream, a telephone had been installed by the company and guards at the foot and at the summit, "cleared" the cars over this hill one at a time.

Special trains were given by all the great railway companies, and also accommodation at their hotels in the provinces.

While individuals contributed very much to the pleasure of these trips, behind it all was the organizing genius of one man—Harry Brittain—who won golden opinions not only because of the perfection to which every detail had been brought, but the urbanity and good humor with which he faced every difficulty. He was ably assisted by his charming wife and by Miss Violet Brooke Hunt, who as head of the Ladies' Auxiliary Committee, did everything in her power to make the ladies of the party comfortable.

What captured the hearts of the delegates was perhaps not so much the perfection of the arrangements made as the whole-hearted way in which the English people of all classes entered into the spirit of the occasion. The hospitality extended was anything but perfunctary in character, but marked throughout by that spirit of heartiness which has not always been regarded as a characteristic of the titled or wealthy Englishman.

HON. CHARLES MURPHY CANNOT SPEAK HERE

Canadian Club Extended Invitation That Has Been Declined.

Hon. Charles Murphy, secretary of state in the Dominion government, who is expected in Victoria in a few days, has been requested to speak at a Canadian Club luncheon here. He has, however, been forced to decline.

Yesterday A. E. McPhillips, K. C., president of the Canadian Club, sent a message to Hon. Mr. Murphy in the following terms: "The Canadian Club of Victoria extends to you cordial invitation to address its members. If you can honor us kindly wire date suitable to you."

The reply received was as follows: "Fear my time too limited to accept your club's kind invitation."

There will be general regret that Mr. Murphy will not be able to speak before the Canadian Club.

SEEKS MONEY LEFT BY RICH AMERICAN

Brother of Mrs. Ruiz, Who Committed Suicide, Begins Inquiry in London.

(Times Leased Wire.)

London, July 15.—With the announcement that Frank O'Brien, brother of Mrs. Agnes Ruiz, with whose suicide the name of a well-known American millionaire was linked, is here to-day seeking her estate, it was learned that Mrs Ruiz left money, clothing and jewels of greater value than was at first supposed.

O'Brien informed his London attorney that Antonio Ruiz, her father-in-law, gave Mrs. Ruiz $130,000 in cash, and that this sum was transferred to her London account.

Since the day that Mrs. Ruiz shot herself no trace of the money, clothing or jewels, beyond her immediate effects in her apartments, has been found.

From investigation it appears that money and possessions all vanished simultaneously, and it is rumored that a friend of the American took them to Paris.

It is predicted that litigation will follow O'Brien investigation, and that servants of Mrs. Ruiz will be called as witnesses.

ATTEMPTED MURDER.

St. Louis Millionaire Fired at While Motoring in Outskirts of City.

St. Louis, July 15.—Thomas Benoist, millionaire manufacturer and club man of this city, was shot at three times by an unknown man early to-day. The gun was held so close to Benoist's head that his face was burned and blackened by the discharge. Two bullets passed through the crown of his hat, but he escaped injury.

According to the story he told the police, Benoist was motoring in the outskirts of the city early to-day. He was stopped by a man who wanted to use the car to carry an injured friend to a hospital. Benoist turned the car into a wooded path, at the direction of the man, and was attacked by some one who leaped in the tonneau with a drawn revolver.

STEEL BARS ADVANCE.

Improvement in Trade Reflected in New York Stock Market.

New York, July 15.—The advance of $1 a ton in the price of steel bars, and generally healthful conditions in the steel trade forced a recovery of United States Steel Corporation shares in the stock market to-day, and put the general market in a sounder condition. Steel common was really the only issue that showed any degree of interest in to-day's unusually dull session. It was extensively supported by the Morgan crowd, and closed 1 5-8 points above the final price of yesterday, while preferred gained 3-4 point. Reading, common, sold ex-dividend 2 per cent. to-day, and considering recent events, was quite strong.

Colorado Fuel & Iron received its support from the same parties boosting the steel shares, and it closed a point above yesterday. Harriman shares were very quiet, but fairly steady with fractional gains in both Southern Pacific and Union Pacific.

DRAWING TO CLOSE.

Chicago, July 15.—Testimony in the sensational trial of Ella Gingles, the lacemaker, accused of theft, was completed to-day and final arguments begun by the attorneys.

The attorneys for the defence claimed in their arguments that the evidence introduced during the trial showed that Miss Agnes Barrett, the complaining witness, had animus against Miss Gingles. The attorneys for the prosecution claim that this is not true.

Whether the girl will be convicted of larceny depends largely upon how much of her sensational story is believed by the court. She alleges that Miss Barrett brought the larceny charges against her in retaliation for having disclosed an alleged attack made upon her by the complaining witness.

The prosecution claims the girl is suffering from monomania, and that she imagined the story

—Boys! Get a saw! Get busy! Get beach wood! One man's 4-foot cross cut saw, $2.25; 4½-foot saw, $2.60; 5-foot saw (for one or two men), $2.75; 7-foot two man saw, $2.85. Extra handles, 20c and 30c. R. A. Brown & Co., 1302 Douglas St. *

—The funeral of the late Alberta Amelia, the five-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Cooksley, will take to-morrow afternoon at 2 o'clock from the family residence, 344 St. James.

—A special meeting of the city council will be held this evening to take up the by-law authorizing the expropriation of the Esquimalt company's works. The agreement with the B. C. Electric Railway Company will probably come up also.

—A dance will be held to-morrow evening at the Strawberry Vale hall, Burnside road, by the residents of the district. A good orchestra has been secured to supply the music and a good time is promised all those who attend. A supper will be served after the dance to finish things off.

—The new garbage wharf at the foot of Herald street is about completed and the concrete foundation for the new incinerator which will be erected at that spot has been finished. The new wharf is considerably higher than the old one, so as to permit the loading of scows at high tide. At the old wharf scows could not be loading at high tide on account of them being higher than the wharf.

—The pupils of Miss Weltha Alexander concluded their examination Monday, July 12th, and of those who tried the following were successful in obtaining sufficient percentage to entitle them to past: From the primary to junior grade: H. Starkey, 89; Arthur Longland, 70; Jack Curtis, 55; Norman Alexander, 53. From junior to senior grade: Miss Longland, 92; Mildred Alexander, 75; Miss L. Curtis, 59; Albert Hilton, 60.

—The funeral of the late Arthur McCoy took place yesterday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock from the Hanna chapel, where services were conducted under the auspices of the Victoria Lodge, No. 17, Knights of Pythias, by Chaplain Manton. There were a number of friends present and many beautiful floral offerings were sent. The following acted as pallbearers: Sergt.-Major Manton, A. B. Oldershaw, C. L. Hoskin and J. Mottram.

—The death occurred on Wednesday morning of Jane Ann Young, wife of Alfred Edward Young, of 1053 North Park street, at the St. Joseph's hospital. Deceased was born in Victoria, and was but 23 years of age. She has only been ill about ten days. The late Mrs. Young is survived by a sorrowing husband and two children. Her parents are now living at Elk lake. The funeral will take place to-morrow afternoon at 2 o'clock from the late residence. Rev. Dr. Campbell will officiate.

THE NEW GRAND.

From opening with a first class skating act by Cogan and Bancroft, which would make a hit on any vaudeville stage, the programme at the New Grand this week is diversified, but the diversity of entertainment makes each especially interesting. The whole bill has not a weak turn in it.

Les Ploetz Larella's troupe of elastic acrobatic performers is incomparable in the acrobatic work of the stage. The suppleness with which the three performers do their work is remarkable.

Georgia Davis, a cultured soprano, with a voice of high power and wide range, also possesses an archness that is captivating. J. Watson Davis supporting her in the musical jingle, is a clever imitator and a good singer. The wardrobe of the lady is extensive and in splendid taste. Her dresses are what women call dreams. Their act is good and varied.

Tom McGuire in kilts met many friends when he made his first appearance here. These have told others to go and see America's Scotchman and hear him sing Harry Lauder's songs. McGuire's voice is powerful, his face is expressive and his rendering of Scotch songs is admirable.

An amusing playlet with John Black, Maurice, Frank and Pearl foster in the cast, and Thomas J. Price and the motion pictures, complete a fine variety bill.

—Only two wedding parties arrived this morning from Puget Sound on the steamer Iroquois. This is an unusually small number and excited remark among the officials. Victoria will be losing her reputation as the Gretna Green of the West if this state of things continues.

—The B. C. Permanent Loan Company pays four per cent. interest on deposits compounded semi-annually. Withdrawable by cheque at any time. Accounts can be started with one dollar or upwards. Paid-up capital over $1,000,000.00 Assets over $2,000,000.00. Branch office, 1210 Government street. *

—The dividend notice of the B. C. Permanent Loan Company appears in another column of this issue. This very successful and progressive British Columbia company has declared a dividend at the rate of 9 per cent per annum for the half year ending June 30, 1909. The company does right by its shareholders and borrowers, and merits its prosperity. *

—The remains of the late ex-Judge J. Rogers were laid to rest yesterday afternoon in Ross Bay cemetery. The funeral, which took place from the B. C. Funeral Furnishing Company's parlors at 4 o'clock, was conducted by the following visiting officers of the Fraternal Order of Elks, under whose charge the funeral was held: J. E. Caldwell, exalted ruler, representing Lodge 593 of Aberdeen, Wash.; Dr. Burgess, esteemed leading knight, representing Lodge 646, Santa Rosa, Cal.; R. A. Wattelett, local knight, representing Lodge 343, Naval Lodge; P. M. Fulton, lecturing knight, representing Lodge 916, Burlington, Vt.; A. E. Sutton, chaplain, representing Lodge 759, Hilo, Hawaii; J. N. Donahue, secretary, representing Lodge 827, Ballard. The hymn "Nearer My God to Thee" was sung. There was a large number of sympathizing friends present, and many floral offerings were sent. The following acted as pallbearers: A. C. Hamilton, Lodge 317, Port Townsend; G. P. McNeil, Lodge 439, Fresno; Walter Boswell, Lodge 4, Chicago; Felix McManus, Lodge 7, Saskatoon; J. A. Cunningham, Lodge 92, Seattle; B. B. Harris, Lodge 30, New Orleans.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS AT FESTIVE BOARD

Second Anniversary of Order Celebrated at Dallas Hotel.

The Knights of Columbus celebrated their second anniversary last night with a banquet at the Dallas hotel, and when Grand Knight Harry O'Leary took his seat as chairman there were nearly one hundred knights seated at the festive board. The host at the Dallas provided a sumptuous repast, after which the Grand Knight, as toastmaster, offered the toast of "The Pope," to which Bishop McDonald responded fittingly. A. E. McPhillips had the toast of "The King," and made a speech that scored a hit with those present.

Brothers Gheravu and McDonald, visiting knights and members of the Boston Grand Opera Company now in the city, rendered songs that proved most acceptable to all. The two visitors were accorded hearty applause, and responded to many demands for encores. The complete toast list was as follows:

"The Pope," His Lordship Bishop McDonald; "The King," A. E. McPhillips, K.C., M.P.P.; song, F. J. Sehl; "Catholic Citizenship," Rev. Father Caine; song, Peter Gheravi; "Our Order," John Hart, M. Steele; song, Sergeant Gillen; "Visiting Brothers," Rev. Father Carlin, Rev. Father Beeton, P. A. Devine; song, James McDonald; "Our Sister Societies," Y.M.I., Rev. Father Van Nevel, C.M.B.A., W. H. P. Sweeney; song, C. F. Oliver; "The Ladies," J. D. O'Connell, P. E. Nyland; "God Save the King."

PANTAGES THEATRE.

In Herold, the muscular wonder, the Pantages theatre has a great attraction this week. The large crowds who attend cannot fail to marvel at the development which he is able to show.

Every man, woman and child who has ever taken any interest in the conflict between capital and labor as it stands to-day, should not fail to see the production of the clever industrial play, "The Midnight Guest," being presented this week at the Pantages theatre by Herbert O'Connor & Co. This masterpiece of modern one-act plays deals directly with the world's most serious question in a manner intensely dramatic, in fact, it is a real play produced by real players and while pleasing everybody, appeals directly to those who think.

In Bert Wiggins the house has a talented cartoonist and juggler. Nan Lewis, the character vocalist, and Adelaide Rogers in picture ballads, complete with the biograph a splendid programme.

NEW TIME FOR SIX FURLONGS

ROALTA RUNS FAST AGAINST REDONDO

Popularity of Meeting is Increasing Among Horsemen.

Roalta, a five-year-old chestnut horse bred by Altamax-Miss Rowena, and owned by the Ontario-Oregon stable, which has been running consistently at the Willows, yesterday registered 1:14 2-5 for the six furlongs, taking four-fifths off the former record of Milpitas made June 30th, with Silver Wedding and Aristotle in the places. Yesterday Milpitas running in the same race, failed to show. Redondo was second and Mill Song third.

J. James was a disappointed man at the conclusion of the first race, where his colt Abihu ran seventh instead of first. The horse suffered from a bad ride and Riley, who had the mount and also the mount on Redondo, was dropped by the popular owner and Anderson given the Redondo mount instead. Riley's ride on Abihu was one of the worst looking performances at the Willows. He found pocket after pocket and seemed to be looking for them all the way round. From bumping Cinnamon at the post and killing that horse's chance Riley made a bad ride all through and as James thought he had a winning colt in the race, he refused to trust Redondo to the same jockey.

Sir Angus went to the post fit and ready in the mile, and with a shooting start got well away and made a gap between the field. The horse was never caught and E. L. Jones made a profitable win.

After winning the seven furlongs, Aristotle was bid up to $500, and bought in by the owner at $505.

The attendance at the Willows for the thirty-fourth day of the meeting was better than that of the Wednesday of the first week. The popularity of the Willows is increasing and horsemen, despite the fact that there will be mile tracks available elsewhere are saying they will come to Victoria again even if a mile track is not built here. The situation, the climate and the element of the place is very satisfactory to them and the conduct of the meeting is spoken of by the old time owners as being equal to the best.

CHAMPIONSHIP MEET AT PRAIRIE CAPITAL

Number of Heats to Take Place To-day—Principal Events on Saturday.

To-day and Saturday next the 26th annual championship meet of the Canadian Amateur Athletic Union will be held at the Winnipeg Industrial exhibition.

A few of the heats will be run off between 7 and 8 o'clock this evening, but the principal part of the programme and the championship events will be conducted on Saturday afternoon.

The parent body of the Dominion amateur athletics has gone to endless expense to make this, the first championship meet conducted west of Toronto, the finest athletic exhibition ever held in the Dominion of Canada.

The events include: 100 yards run, 220 yards run, 440 yards run, 880 yards run, one mile run, one mile relay, 120 yards hurdles, 220 yards hurdles, three mile walk, five mile run, standing broad jump, running high jump, running broad jump, running hop, step and jump, pole vault, 56 lb. weight, 16 lb. hammer, 16 lb. shot, throwing the discus.

There will also be the twenty mile Winnipeg Telegram road race and a set of events for boys under 18 years of age as follows: 100 yards run, 220 yards run, 440 yards run, 880 yards run, one mile run, running high jump, running broad jump, putting 8 lb. shot.

In addition to the gold, silver and bronze Dominion championship medals, the Winnipeg Free Press has donated a trophy to be given to the championship athlete scoring the highest number of points throughout the meet. The T. Eaton company are also contributing the Eaton trophy, to be awarded to the winning team in the Dominion of Canada championship relay race.

THE RING.

FLYNN AND PAPKE BOX.

Los Angeles, July 15.—Billy Papke and Jim Flynn met in a ten-round bout before a fair-sized crowd at the Pacific Athletic Club last night. They fought at catch weights, the betting being ten to six, with Papke the favorite. The law permits no decision, but Flynn had the advantage in nearly every round.

IS NELSON GIVING OUT?

San Francisco, Cal., July 15. — Two questions are being asked by the fans as the result of Tuesday night's Nelson-Wolgast go. They are:

"Has Battling Nelson gone back?"

"Is the wonderful endurance, which made him the greatest lightweight of his day, waning?"

Since Nelson sprang into the limelight he has been known as the man that never backed up. No matter what came his way he refused to give an inch, persistently boring in and taking more. It was noticed in his fight with Dick Hyland, the little Californian, in one of the earlier rounds compelled Nelson to spar and to back away, but while it was commented upon freely, it was soon passed up on the belief that Hyland had caught the Dane off his guard.

But there is no mistaking what Wolgast did to Nelson. He actually forced him about the ring, holding him up against the ropes and compelling him to run to cover and to do the backward glide.

The many pummelings that Nelson has taken, and he has taken a pounding in every battle in which he participated, were bound sooner or later to break down his really marvellous constitution.

WILL FORM A NEW LACROSSE LEAGUE

Junior Players to Be Encouraged to Follow the Game.

At a general meeting of lacrosse enthusiasts held last evening at the Victoria Sporting Goods Co., when a large number of Victoria West and North Ward players were present, it was decided that it was altogether too early in the season to let lacrosse die, and as the junior league just completed had been such a success it was decided that another junior league be formed.

The feeling of the meeting was that the only way to develop good lacrosse in Victoria is to keep the youngsters at it, and so another series of games will be played. Entries for this new league will close next Wednesday night, when another meeting will be held to complete all details, such as drawing up schedules, etc.

So that the boys would have something to play for it was decided that each team give 10 per cent. of their share of gate receipts to the league until the sum of $60 be raised; and if at the end of the series of five games this sum is not forthcoming, then each club make up the deficit equally. The sum thus raised will go toward buying lockets or medals for the winning team.

At the present time there are only two entries, Victoria West and North Ward, but as entries are open till next Wednesday night it is possible that another team from Oak Bay or Cloverdale will enter.

The matter of reinstating certain players came up last night, but was left over till the next meeting, when some definite decision will be reached.

Both North Ward and Victoria West teams will commence practicing at once, as although North Ward were victors in the previous league, the Victoria West boys are determined to make a big fight for top place on this occasion, and already they have called a full practice of both junior and senior players for to-morrow night at King's field, Esquimalt road, when no doubt a very lively game will be participated in.

At last evening's meeting Ed. Christopher acted as chairman, while S. Okell did the duties of secretary.

SECTIONAL MEETINGS OF THE TEACHERS

Educational Matters Were Discussed Under Various Departments of Work at Sessions Held Yesterday Afternoon.

The Dominion Educational Association, at its yelsterday afternoon session, divided into sections and held four meetings in different parts of the city. The elementary department assembled in Assembly hall; the higher educatinon department made the High school its gathering place; in the Pemberton gymnasium the inspection and training departments held its meeting, while the industrial education department gathered in the manual training centre at the Central school. All sections were able to continue their meetings throughout the afternoon, with the exception of that devoted to inspection and training. Neither of the gentlemen who were to give papers in that division were present, so the meeting was adjourned.

The convention of teachers is the most important educational gathering that has ever been held in Victoria. It has attracted instructors and those associated with educational institutions from all parts of Canada and some from the United States. Universly professors, provincial superintendents of education, high school teachers and public school teachers are all assembled together, getting inspiration, talking over methods, and receiving every hour of the day by their intercourse new lessons to better fit them for the important task they have in shaping the public opinion of this country. These men and women are charged with training the future citizens of Canada. The influence of the teacher has a lasting effect upon most of the boys and girls who attend the schools. To the honor of the profession it can be said that few teachers fail to realize that responsibility.

The convention is proving a grand success, and the teachers of British Columbia are reaping rich benefits from its meeting here. Eberything is moving like clock-work under the presidency of Dr. Alex. Robinson, superintendent of education, and J. D. Buchanan, the able secretary.

HIGHER EDUCATION SECTION CONVENES

Yesterday afternoon the higher education department of the convention met in the High school with the president of that section, A. E. Lang, in the chair. Prof. Lang delivered a short introductory address. He was followed by Prof. Milner of Toronto, who spoke on the subject "What is Specialization?" The address was a good one, and deep interest was taken in it, as shown by the short speeches which followed. Dr. Milnen said that there was always some doubt as to whether the young people who left the college had really the "higher education." It was in the field of higher education that there was most divergence among educationsits. He spoke highly of the work being done by the much sneered at small college, which, he said, often compared favorably with the larger institutions.

He wondered when it would be recognized that education was continued after the university career. At Toronto the courses had grown up as a compromise between professionalism and higher education.

At Oxford mathematics never flourisned. In the courses power rather than knowledge was the aim. An Oxford first class was a higher guarantee of power than any other degree in the world. This was acquired by devotion to one of the great departments of the course. Men were sometimes led into their life work by an insignificent event. When this awakening had come it would influence his education.

The person who did not get the university education often felt the lack of something which he fancied the others had.

The western academic man sneered at some of the works of the old thinkers, as text books. At Oxford there were no text books. The books were simply a base for argument which developed the philosophic temperament.

The speaker advised arranging the field of knowledge and confining students to one of the courses. Subsidiary subjects were taken up only as they might be necessary. The great workers, he said, had succumbed to a great immediate interest which had led them on to greater things.

When President Elliott advised people to read a five-foot shelf of books in order to get a liberal education, he was flying in the face of all the learned institutions on the continent. Higher education he claimed was more than a mere training of the intellect.

Liberal Education.

Any group of men studying together any subject were getting a real university training.

The American system was to study a number of unrelated subjects. Still there were cultured men coming from the small colleges and also as a biproduct from the greater schools. Any company of workers, if they were enthusiastic, were bound to be benefited, but this could hardly be called higher education. Fine workers might be developed in this way in all lines, but the life of the nation would not be broadened.

This was a critical hour in the west in the matter of learning. "Shall we aim at discipline, outlook or manhood?" inquired the professor, or shall we ask the students to choose for themselves what they will do?

Three great difficulties presented themselves. There was really a great waste of energy in a great university. The first duty of men in a new country was to criticise the work of the existing institutions and to choose the fundamentals. Modern history, economics and philosophy were needed. Higher education, the professor claimed, was not only power, but a quality, an outlook, a certain body of vital knowledge.

There would be universities and colleges in this country long before there would be higher education.

Dr. Pritchett's Views.

Dr. Pritchett, of New York, who was called upon by the president, admitted that it was true the American colleges were going through a curious transformation. He also acknowledged that there was much in the smaller college which was to be admired. There was, however, very serious effort being made in the United States to reform the college and it was not improbable that the college would give place to something corresponding with the German gymnasium.

He said the training at the German institutions excelled even the English colleges, but the social life of the English colleges was unexcelled anywhere in the world.

Either the American college would turn to the gymnasium of Germany or develop into the college life of England. He favored the college which would be surmounted by a university.

Dr. Pritchett said he was extremely interested in the founding of the universities in these new provinces, and hoped the people here would build wisely, avoiding the faults of the American university and also of all others.

Adam Shortt's Opinion.

Adam Shortt thought it a good thing to stir up this matter. It was not to be expected that they could arrive at definite decisions, but the discussion would keep their minds flexible. It was not possible to provide an educational system for a country, for that was impossible. An educational institution was simply an instrument for bringing forth the potentialities within. The people who quarrelled most were those dealing with the richest field.

There were people whom it was no use to send to the university. The four years at that institution would be of no use to them. The specialists were useful and he did not see why they should smother them. A great many American specialists could not retire because they had nothing to retire to. If they did they would die. They knew only one thing. This man could not be spared but the man of liberal education benefited from all of these. All the types would be produced in the new provinces but they wanted more opportunity for culture for those who desired it.

"The salvation of the country lies not in the colleges, but in the ordinary high schools," he said. There was a fatal lack of accuracy in the fundamentals. Canadians wrote and spoke slipshod English. This resulted from the lack of training. The schools ply equipped people with the instruments of education. If they obtained this grounding the university would not do them much harm, and it might do them good.

It was not necessary to arrive at hard and fast conclusions, for that would fossilize them.

Prof. De Witt.

Prof. De Witt, of Toronto, said he had lived in the United States for ten years, and he found a great many students in that country who were getting the best kind of education. There were many students, however, who were children of uneducated parents, and this influence was too strong.

He defined education as the ability to have reactions in the brain. He defined a liberal education as one that prepared a man to intelligently use his spare time. "A man may work all day and then study music or go to a saloon; all depends upon his education."

He illustrated what he meant by instancing a business man whom he knew who left his business for a holiday, but enjoyed it so little that he returned to his business because there was no other way in which he could enjoy himself.

Mr. Stramberg.

Mr. Stramberg of New Westminster, defined education as "power resting on habit." He believed in training the moral, intellectual and physical so that the men and women could grapple with the conditions of life. Work at the High school should be a struggle in order that it may bring out the latent possibilities of the pupils.

The section then adjourned until today.

ELEMENTARY WORK IN PUBLIC SCHOOLS

The elementary school section met in the Assembly hall in the afternoon, under the chairmanship of Principal J. B. Wallis, Machray school, Winnipeg, who acted for Miss Jessie Ptolemy, Winnipeg, president of the section. There was a large attendance both of delegates and the public. During the first paper and discussion the chairman was relieved by Mr. King, of Kitsellano school, Vancouver.

Principal Wallis read a very carefully prepared paper on "English in the Elementary School." He went very thoroughly into the teaching of English, from the lowest grade up. In the first grade he would start by enlarging the pupils' vocabulary, and he laid stress on the proper teaching of phonics. The teacher should tell the children stories, the fairy tale and folklore story being a very suitable form. Memory gems were many, Eugene Field and Stevenson offering a class of poem easily remembered, suited to the intelligence of children and couched in the best English. In grade two commences the writing of words, and in grades three and four proceeds to more difficult work. The crux of a great deal of the poor work in this and other studies in higher grades, he said, was to be found in the acceptance of slovenly work in the lower grades. In grade five composition would be introduced and, in view of many children leaving off school there, the writing of simple business letters, although personally he thought that a grade too soon. Throughout the pupils must be taught to be careful, to use good language and put their ideas in proper form and order.

Miss Hurlbatt, Montreal, asked to what extent the speaker would allow the use of stories.

J. Smith, Vernon, B. C., asked Principal Wallis to develop his ideas a little further along the lines of the method of arousing the critical faculty.

Principal Wallis, in reply, said that children liked stories and a great deal of information was stored away in their brains. In the higher grades stories were used as a basis for written compositions, the pupils being asked to retell these in their own words. To Mr. Smith he said one method of developing the critical faculty was by having the pupils read each other's work. A person could find errors in another's work where these would slip their notice in their own. He himself also had his pupils watch in the books they read and in newspapers and advertisements for badly-constructed sentences and poor English.

Examination Papers.

J. R. Brown, Kelowna, B. C., asked Principal Wallis how he managed about the working of examination papers.

Principal Wallis replied that he took note of some of the more striking errors, and pointed them out in future exercises, but he never named the pupils. The system of having the children read each other's composition took two-thirds off the work of marking papers. When one had chilrden who had been trained from the start to be sure their sentence structure was correct it was a great help to the teachers.

A teacher said he took glaring errors he found in examination papers, wrote the sentence on the board, pointed out the faults and having the children rewrite this afterwards correctly. He asked what place Principal Wallis gave to analysis in composition work.

Principal Wallis replied that it was a very debatable question whether grammar should be taught in connection with composition. He did not think it necessary. In regard to punctuation he reminded the association that except for the full point there was no absolute uniformity of usage.

The chairman, apropos of the stress laid on the mechanics of composition, remarked that in the United States stress was placed on composition as developing the inner life of the child. He expressed a desire to hear from Dr. Greenwood, superintendent of the schools of Kansas City, on this subject.

Dr. Greenwood, of Kansas City, told the association that the plan followed in the Kansas City schools, which was having good results, was rather different from the somewhat chaotic system in force generally in the various states. They encouraged the children to write well in plain English, not to indulge in "fine" writing, but to write enough, to use not too many words nor yet too few, to use the right word or words and to put each word in the sentence where it stands for the most and does its own work, and to follow but a few rules as to punctuation and capitalization.

Miss Ethel Hurlbatt, warden of the Royal Victoria College, Montreal's college for women in affiliation with McGill University, read a clever and highly intellectual paper on the place and influence of the woman teacher in elementary education. She pointed out the great disparity between the sexes in the teaching profession. Prince Edward Island has more than half as many women as men, New Brunswick more than eight times as many, Nova Scotia nearly seven times, Quebec about seven times, Ontario four times, Manitoba more than three times and Alberta more than twice as many. Figures are not available for British Columbia and Saskatchewan. The tendency was to employ women rather than men, women being the cheaper article, so to speak, and men finding more remunerative outlets in the development of the country.

There was no doubt of the place of women in school work, Miss Hurlbatt said. Men and women should work together there as in every other line of work in life; boys benefitted by the care and influence of men and women, girls benefitted by the influence and care of women and men. Two lines of school work in which the influence of women would be found were those of school hygiene and physical education. In the latter connection Lord Strathcona's gift for cadet corps and physical education was mentioned. There need be no fear that the cadet corps would foster the military spirit, but they would be effective in building up life and character. A military system of physical education was not suited to the young.

Dr. Robinson, Miss Williams, principal of the Girls' Central school; W. P. Argue, city superintendent of the Vancouver schools; Rev. T. W. Gladstone and Dr. Greenwood, Kansas City, spoke in high terms of the paper. Rev. Mr. Gladstone referred to the change in England from a system of military drill to physical training and warned the Canadian teachers to be careful lest the military system of education was forced upon them. Another thing on which he put weight was the showing of children how to play games.

John Kyle, superior of drawing in the Vancouver schools, read a paper on the adaptation of nature to design in the elementary school. By the aid of a blackboard and crayons he explained his system of correlating nature study to the drawing lesson. Young children in the elementary schools, he said, were not adapted to copy from nature direct; they preferred to draw from discussion or imagination. They would rather draw with a brush and colors than with the pencil, and they loved decoration. Mr. Kyle showed how simply children could be led into a knowledge of nature through the drawing lesson and also how readily the faculty of designing and creating could be aroused in them.

The paper was discussed by Miss J. A. Cameron, supervisor of drawing in the Winnipeg schools; Miss Mills, Vancouver, and Inspector J. L. Hughes, Toronto.

INDUSTRIAL PART IN EDUCATION

The manual training section opened this afternoon with President Dunnell in the chair, and a goodly number of people interested in this branch of education present.

The president, after welcoming the delegates from other cities, spoke of the prejudice that existed among some teachers to manual training work, and pointed out means of rectifying matters. He also stated that in this province manual training was being talked more and more in rural districts, and ere long several centres were likely to be opened.

The matter of forming an association of manual training teachers was touched upon, but discussion of it was postponed until to-morrow.

Owing to his wife's illness Mr. Bennett of Regina, was unable to be present to give his paper, "Industrial Training for Teachers," and Mr. Northrop of Vancouver, was asked to read it in his place.

The main central idea of this paper was that teachers as a rule were not in touch with the outside industrial world. He advocated teachers to take special courses during vacation or go to farms, factories, etc., and so get into touch with the every-day life of the outside world.

Constructive Imagination.

W. H. Binns of Victoria, followed with a paper entitled "The Development of Constructive Imagination in Our Woodwork Centres."

The main idea of this paper was that in all our centres too much of a stereotyped set of models was given. Mr. Binns went on to show how by conversational lessons, pupils could be brought to design their own models after having first learned the new tool operation each model contained.

TRAINING SECTION OF TEACHERS' WORK

Yesterday the section of the convention having the inspection and training department to consider was unfortunate in not having either of those who were to have given papers, present at the meeting. The president, David Soloan, was also absent, but his place was taken by A. C. Stewart. After the situation was explained the section adjourned and repaired to other divisions of the convention.

R. A. Little, principal of the London Collegiate Institute, one of the most successful of Ontario's collegiates, sent a paper on "The Professional Preparation of the High School Teacher." The paper, which was taken as read, was as follows:

High School Teacher.

This is an age in which special preparation for life work is demanded of every one. In the professions of law and medicine this has long been recognized and now the rapid extension of trade and technical schools point to the increased demand for skilled mechanics and heads in all departments of commercial and manufacturing activity. The old apprenticeship system has passed away and the school and college must take up the work of preparation which it so long carried on. It is, therefore, fitting that in the profession of teaching—the most important of all professions from the standpoint of national progress—the most thorough preparation possible should be demanded of those who intend to engage in this work. There is also in all states and among all classes a deepening interest in education, and to satisfy the public demand the skilled teacher is all important. Fine buildings, splendid equipment, well-defined systems and courses are of great value but the teacher is the soul of that unity of which these other essentials are the body. There can be no true success apart from the skilled teacher.

The high school curriculum has in recent years undergone a wonderful expansion and is now broad and complex. The individual teacher must fit into a complicated system. While possessing a general knowledge of at least the meaning of the whole course, he must be specially fitted to teach some portion of it with more than ordinary skill. The prfoessional training of the high school teacher must be complex in a degree corresponding to the curriculum, and the school or college that undertakes this work has a great variety of human material to deal with and a great variety of subjects to handle and correlate. Such a complicated problem as the training of teachers does not admit of a solution that has scientific or mathematical certainty. This feature of the case should at once be recognized both by the institutions that undertakes this work and the public and profession itself that is only too ready to criticise the work and product of these institutions. All should remember that in the working-out of this problem the modifying factors are very numerous. It must be solved by the educational authorities in a more or less tentative way. The local or provincial situation must be taken into account. Existing institutions must be used, modified and extended to help solve the general problem. We shall consider first some of the outstanding features of the situation.

One of the main questions connected with teacher training and one in regard to which there is considerable diversity of opinion in the United States is this: What affiliations and connections, if any, should exist between training schools and other so-called higher institutions of learning—colleges or universities. By some it is maintained that the atmosphere, academic and otherwise, of a large university is not conducive to the development of the teaching spirit; that the distraction incident to such university life is opposed to the development of that consciousness of public service which should animate the teacher in an eminent degree; and that therefore the strictly professional training should be given in an institution entirely free from the materialistic tendencies of the age and where the teacher-in-training will be under the continuous guiding influence of men animated with the same life purposes and ideals as the future teacher ought to be. This theory it should be observed has reference particularly to normal schools which in the United States train teachers for public schools and the lower grades of high schools and we must bear in mind that in our own country high school teachers are of two classes, graduates and non-graduates, and that to be exact we must consider the cases of these two classes separately. Surely, however, we are right in assuming that the advocates of this theory do not in any way desire to under-estimate the value of a university course for any teacher. Whatever arguments may be advanced against teachers living and moving in the university atmosphere during their professional training, these can in no way affect the fact of the necessity of a university course for a large majority of the teachers in our high schools. Such a course is manifestly necessary for those who are going to teach the special and so-called higher branches. In the case then of the graduates we may dismiss this theory as unworthy of consideration, refuted by the experience and conscience of graduate teachers themselves. But in any case the theory seems a very narrow one. Apart from the reflection on the working-spirit of the university—and that of the great universities of the United States rather than any of our own—it casts discredit on the spirit of the prospective teacher himself. The profession should be animated with lofty ideals of service and self-sacrifice, but the martyr attitude is scarcely an elevating one for the profession itself to assume. Seclusion is detrimental to the best interests of the teacher and a fencing-in process is the one to be avoided. This narrow view is the product of an age and of educational theories which saw the wide divergence between the methods of the university lecture-room, with whose failings graduates are only too familiar, and the methods proper to public and high school teaching. But it was also limited by the narrow theory of Herbartian methodology and set too high a value on mere method of teaching as distinguished from wide and varied academic scholarship. The higher professional training of teachers is in its incipiency in this country and it is to be hoped that the educational authorities of the different provinces will be free from this worn-out doctrine in determining the principles under which they shall establish faculties for the higher training of teachers. It will scarcely be denied by any one that if a teacher of any grade is to have a proper view of the relation of any subject on the curriculum, then he must have a broad view of intellectual life in general and have an intelligent appreciation of the great movements and activities of modern life in all its phases—intellectual, social and economic. This is absolutely necessary if a teacher is to be saved from laying too much stress on any particular subject and from looking at life in that narrow way which the teacher is all too apt to fall into.

We can all recall in our experience men in high positions in education whose work has been marred and whose usefulness has been contracted by just narrow or enlarged views of educational values as a college education would have saved them from. The university graduate may obtain this wide outlook during his university course, the non-graduate should get it, if not before, then in the purely theoretical part of his professional training. If it is true, as is generally maintained, that the best teacher of the higher grades is the man who has a broad academic knowledge of the work of the higher grades. In the first case the teacher has a more thorough knowledge, gained from experience perhaps, of the growth and development of the mind from the child up to young manhood; in the latter case he has a broader and saner knowledge of the subject matter to be taught and its relation to other fields of knowledge. Both elements are sources of strength and power. It is scarcely necessary at this point to insist upon the broad and thorough education of those who carry on the work in the training schools.

On the other hand, whatever value the university life and atmosphere may have for the student during his academic course we must admit that these are and must be different from the life and atmosphere of the training school. But it is a mistake to regard these as antagonistic instead of complementary. The same difference might be noted between the university and any other institution that trains directly for vocation. It has become quite apparent from educational experience in Ontario that the high school cannot and, to fulfil its proper function, should not give that thorough academic training which prospective public school teachers require. The work of the high school must be supplemented by academic work in the normal schools in the subjects of the public school course. A teaching knowledge of a subject on the public school course is something more than the knowledge of it gained in a high school. Perhaps to a greater extent the methods of instruction that prevail in the university are ill-suited to the high school, and it is all the more necessary that graduates should be specially trained in methods of presenting the particular subject or subjects which they propose handling in the high school. Incidentally we may express the hope that the influence of the training school will be felt in the lecture rooms of the university. Our conclusions now are that while the training school for the highest grade of teachers may be with great advantages to itself and teachers-in-training affiliated and in close connection with the university, still it will and must be a quite separate unit as regards its faculty and its field of work. Its aims, ideals and methods are peculiar and unique. The institution as a whole must be dominated by its own spirit and purpose. The work of teaching is as specific as that of law, medicine or agriculture. But it is no more the part of a training than of a law or medical school to crush individuality and turn out mere machines for giving instruction. Its work can only be preparatory and largely partial. It points to the sign-posts and shows the danger-signals. The journey is life-long for him who would be a continuous and growing success.

We need scarcely consider the question whether the theoretical part of the teacher-training course should go hand in hand with his academic course in the upniversity. Such a policy is not only impractical but impossible. The academic course is quite heavy enough to engage the student's whole attention. The most that can be hoped for is that he may be able to profit by the methods of instruction presented in the lecture room. Imitation does not cease with childhood and the college lecturer or professor may be of the greatest service to all his students by wise and clear methods of instruction. The influence of Geore Paxton Young, of blessed memory, has in this regard gone with his students into school, law-court, doctor's office and industrial house throughout the whole Dominion. Reverting now to the case of the non-graduate who may obtain a certificate to teach in a high school, it is an open question whether it would not be better that he should receive his initial training in a normal school. The strong argument against such a policy at present is that it would increase the attendance at the already over-crowded normal schools and largely decrease the attendance at the university training-schools—faculties of education—which are capable of handling more than the number of graduates who offer themselves for the teaching profession. It is at present a matter of expediency and economy. The transition of a pupil from a public school to a high school is a gradual one. Many of the subjects of the public school course are pursued at greater length in the high school. The public school teacher with the highest grade of certificate and experience in teaching this work should be able and is able to handle this work quite satisfactorily. But he should have public school experience of at least two years before engaging in high school work. It would then be necessary for him to obtain his professional certificate in the first instance from the normal school and his professional course at the faculty of education could be lightened, as it actually is now in the case of those who have had certain experience in teaching. Three years at least and in most cases four years is the average difference in age between university graduates and graduates of the high school with the highest academic certificate. It is not reasonable that these two classes so far apart in age and academic training should receive their professional training at the same institution and largely of the same character. Of course the same argument would not hold in the case of those who have, after attendance at the normal school, taught several years on a second class school certificate and have in the meantime passed the senior leaving examination.

The teachers in the training schools perhaps better than the students, realize that one year is all too short to cover the necessary work of preparation in the case of those who have had no previous experience in teaching of any kind. And yet it is felt that one

What Sunshine Furnace does

Sunshine Furnace is designed and constructed to heat a house, church, school or store, and does this more satisfactorily than any other known furnace or other style of heating apparatus.

It does this more rapidly than the hot water boiler because, as soon as fire is started in Sunshine Furnace, heated air can be obtained for the rooms.

It does this better than other furnaces because, being made from exclusive patterns, it has more commendable features.

It does this more economically than the boiler because even air circulation keeps fuel bill low.

WARM AIR

SUNSHINE FURNACE

It does this more conveniently than the hot water boiler, because it has no radiators to take up room, congregate dust and mar the paper and woodwork.

It does this more hygienically than the boiler because pure air is admitted to the furnace through a cold air pipe.

NEEDLE WORK IN PUBLIC SCHOOLS

Exhibit Is Now on View in Assembly Hall.

The public school exhibit of needle work will be a surprise to many visiting Assembly hall during the teacher's convention. Samples of the first long, uneven stitches of little tots up to the most elaborate silk embroidery are shown.

In conversation with Miss Boorman, the instructor in needlework in the public schools of Victoria, the latter said that the first lesson consisted of a talk on the thimble, the different materials it was made of, and its uses, followed by a thimble and needle drill. In this drill the children were taught the position of the needle on the thimble; the finger, wrist, and arm movements.

The above occupies several lessons interspersed with talks on clean hands and fingernails. The class is then supplied with pieces of unbleached calico already prepared and started with black thread. As soon as scholars have learnt how to hold the work they are able to take up thimble, needle and work, ready to start a stitch. A great deal has been accomplished when a class of 40 or 45 little ones can do this simultaneously with perfect ease.

Step by step each stitch is taught through junior, intermediate and senior grades; hemming, sewing, stitching, sewing on tape, a button, gathering on a band, working a button-hole, herring-boning, patching and darning, and examples of the different steps in the work are shown in the exhibit, from the plain, prosaic duster and tea towel to the elaborate, lace-trimmed doll's skirt which combines them all.

Darning is taught by giving the pupils strips of canvas, into which they weave the thread, thus ensuring an eveness of stitch. The next step is a strip of canvas with a small hole cut in it, which the children fill in. Then comes the real, practical work of darning stockings. Of these, several neatly mended pairs on exhibition prove that the darning has borne fruit. Patching is taught in the same practical way.

A number of specimens of fancy work done at home, and entirely without aid from the teacher, is proof positive of the genuine progress made by the pupils. Frances Norris, a child of eleven, shows a very pretty pin-cuhsion; Margaret Carey, aged twelve, a canvas sofa cushion embroidered in wild roses; Kate Jackson, aged fifteen, a fine sample of drawn work and embroidery; Leah Thompson, a very dainty tea cosey cover in wild rose design on white linen; Muriel Grant, aged eleven, shows some very pretty ribbon work on cream canvas; Inez Terry, aged thirteen, a dainty handkerchief bag; Tima Duck, aged eleven, an elegant shaving pad with linen cover embroidered in marguerite. Besides these there are many other articles equally deserving of merit did space permit.

The room where the exhibition is held is to the left on entering, and has been tastefully hung with green paper draped with white bunting. A rest room for ladies attending the convention is in connection with it.

year is as much as can be asked for this purpose of those who are entering upon the teaching profession. It is scarcely too much to say that many students in six months and some even in a year can scarcely acquire the educational vocabulary necessary to comprehend the meaning of what the lecturer is saying or of what he has read in books dealing with educational systems and principles, and psychology.

We are brought now face to face with another question of supreme moment connected with teacher-training. It is this: Is it possible for the best professional training to be given before the teacher has had any real teaching experience and consequently should his entire professional training precede all actual experience? It matters not whether the course extend over a year or six months. Let us look at the same problem in connection with the public school. In Ontario the model school which gave the public school teacher his initial professional training in a three-months' course has been largely done away with and the students go direct to the normal school to get a more extended course during one year's attendance. Men of the widest experience in teacher-training maintain that this is a mistake. No student can go to any training school and get the highest value out of the course unless he can read into the instruction given his own practical experience. The principle is fundamental in all educational processes. Authorities maintain, what we can infer to be true, that the student who takes a course in a normal school, with an actual teaching experience of a year or two behind him, has an altogther different and higher appreciation of the instruction given than one who has had no such experience. Analogies are very often delusive, but let us compare the method with that pursued in an agricultural college. What young man intending to be a farmer would think of going to such a college before he had had several years experience on the farm? Or what difference in meaning would a course at such a college have for a young man brought up on a farm and one who had no such experience? Such a policy in regard to farming as is pursued in regard to teaching would be considered very valuable to say the least. It is because the student can bring to bear his own farming experience and have that experience confirmed as far as it is right and correct in so far as it is wrong that he goes back to the farm with a clearer insight into all the operations of his calling.

It has been stated that when county model schools were initiated, they were only regarded as a temporary expedient to meet the pressing necessity of getting sufficient teachers for the schools, and this has been advanced as a reason for their abolition. Doubtless in many cases the organization was defective and the training poor. The certificate—third class—issued as a result of this training was good for three years and that was too long. Young teachers in three years fall into defective methods and habits in teaching and management from which there is no subsequent escape. It was right that the whole system of teacher-training should have been bettered and the standard of teachers raised. But be this as it may, the principle of having a preliminary short course followed by an actual experience of a year or two in a suitable position under a wise principal, to be followed later by a second course in a training school is undoubtedly the only logical one to adopt in the work of teacher-training for public schools and the one which as far as possible and necessary should be adopted for all classes of teachers. To one who had had no actual experience in teaching, lectures on the principles of education and method and on school management are largely meaningless and the ability to pass examinations on the subject is no criterion of the probable success of the candidate in the actual work of the school. A teacher with a most successful experience of several years in public and high school work wrote on the examination of the general and special courses in the Ontario faculty of education. He gave little attention to lectures or reading on general method and school management, relying on his experience as his best instructor in these subjects. So it was and he passed well. But he expressed his belief, for which there was good foundation, that many students, who had no experience whatever but had taken careful notes on lectures and had noted the stock themes of the lecturers, obtained far higher marks than he did on these subjects. It is quite possible and very probable that some of those who obtained high marks will be failures when the real test comes in actual experience.

I am not advocating that teachers with a minimum of training should go out and occupy important positions of responsibility. Every precaution should be taken by regulation that immature teachers may be placed where least possible harm may be done during the period of trial. They should be under wise, sympathetic principal who will render all possible assistance. Those who are likely to prove successful in the profession will thus be helped along and those who are sure to be failures may be eliminated as soon as possible. This is a wise and just course for all concerned.

It is also the duty of the faculty of a training school to see that those who from disposition or mental or physical make-up will never, so far as human judgment can foresee, make teachers of any degree of success are turned aside to follow some other vocation, and it is gratifying to know that by the present faculties at Toronto and Queen's, this is actually being done. It is just possible that a teacher-in-training might not, in the judgment of the faculty, be adapted for the grade of teaching he was working for, and yet be adapted for a lower grade. The faculty of education or staff of normal school might in this regard be of service to many in guiding them aright into their proper sphere.

There remains to be considered in connection with what has been already said, the work done in the model practice school. This should be, if possible, a special school thoroughly equipped for a specific purpose. The work in connection with this consists of observation and practice. Obviously this part of the professional training of the teacher is the most difficult to solve in a satisfactory way. An ideal scheme can scarcely be evolved. Observation without the actual facing of difficulties in practice is of very limited value. And yet it is all important that the teaching and managing which the student teachers are to look upon as ideal should be of the highest character. The instinct of imitation is still strongly operative. It is very necessary also that there should be the closest connection between theory and practice. The student teacher should see in the concrete situation before him the working out of the principles which have been enunciated in the lecture. It will not be possible to an extent for the lecturing and teaching to be done by the same person. Hence the great necessity that there should be essential unity in the lecturing and teaching bodies.

The number of lessons taught by the teachers-in-training must be limited if the whole course is covered in a year. Considerable observation should precede any actual attempts at teaching. Great care should be exercised so that failure may not attend the first effort. This would have a most discouraging effect. Moreover, the interests of the pupils must be safeguarded against too crude work. Few parents are willing to offer their children for purposes of experimentation. Classes in the practice school should be only large enough to satisfy the needs of the situation. The teachers in charge would thus be better able to see that the pupils did not in any way suffer, while the process of training teachers was going on.

The difficulties of the problem here suggested throw light on what I said before in regard to model schools for public school teachers. One reason for giving the prospective teacher actual continuous experience after a short professional training course was this. The teaching of assigned lessons by teachers-in-training while under the pressure of hard study on a stiff course for examination, and that, too, under the eyes of a critic has little direct relation to the actual organized work of the class-room. It certainly is a severe test and I would not minimize the value which a wise critic teacher may make of it to the teacher-in-training, but it is not to be compared with three months' steady practice under the close and expert supervision of a good principal, while the teacher is free from the pressure of examinations. No test of learning or knowledge of school method is involved in these spasmodic half-hour recitations alternating with weeks of study. They are, however, a vast improvement on methods in many normal schools in the United States, where no practice in teaching is given at all, and on the policy of twenty-five years ago in our own country when graduates were turned loose into the high schools without professional training of any sort.

The following facts, however, should be noted in connection with this criticism. It does not necessarily hold that the same regulations should be enforced in the case of public school teachers of the lowest grade and high school teachers, particularly those who are honor graduates of the university. The work of the public school teacher is vastly different from the work of a high school teacher, particularly one who is in charge of one or two departments. The difference in age and consequently of ordinary experience in life would justify a different policy in regard to the two classes of teachers. The broader academic training would also constitute another difference. And it must be remembered that in Ontario graduates of the faculty of education are granted only interim certificates and that permanent certificates are granted, after at least two years' successful experience, provided moreover, that the holder of the interim certificate is then twenty-one years of age. To sum up:

1. The professional training of high school teachers can be best carried on in connection with a university.

2. The faculty should be distinct from all other faculties and suitable separate buildings provided for the work.

3. Students with senior leaving standing—the highest academic standard resulting from a high school course—who have had no experience in teaching, should not receive their initial professional training in the faculties of education.

4. The teacher's academic training should be such as to give him an intelligent knowledge of the intellectual, social and economic phases of modern life.

5. One year is too short for thorough professional training except perhaps for specialists; but a year is all that at present can be afforded for the work in view of the financial aspects of the problem.

6. A model teaching school should be specially provided.

7. Considerable observation should precede practice in teaching.

8. There should be essential unity between the purely theoretical work and the purely professional work.

9. Model lessons must first be attempted, but these should be supplemented by a short term of continuous teaching.

10. Approximation to an ideal system is all that can be attained.

A NOBLE RECORD

Of many hundreds of thousands of cures forms a well sustained basis for every claim put forth by the makers of DR. PIERCE'S GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY as a remedy for many of the troublesome affections which afflict mankind; yet it is not extolled as a "cure-all" by any means. No extravagant promises are flaunted before the public to arouse false hopes in the afflicted. Your neighbors probably know of some of its many cures; ask them.

Through strengthening and arousing the stomach, liver and bowels into vigorous action, digestion is promoted, whereby the blood is enriched and purified, disease-producing bacteria destroyed and expelled from the body, and thus a long list of skin, scrofulous and kindred affections are overcome and sound, vigorous health established.

The "Discovery" contains no alcohol and no habit-forming drugs, and has its every ingredient printed on its wrappers. This OPEN PUBLICITY places it in a class distinct from the ordinary secret nostrums with which it has no relationship. Physicians, therefore, do not hesitate to prescribe it in bad cases of indigestion, torpid liver or biliousness and in skin and blood affections. People of intelligence and keen discernment employ it. The "Discovery" is a pure glyceric extract of native medicinal roots of great curative potency, and can in no case do harm to either child or adult. The aged find it a great invigorator.

You can learn more about this time proven and popular "Discovery" from the People's Common Sense Medical Adviser, by Dr. R. V. CAPTAIN OF SCHOONER IS UNDER ARREST

Charged With Not Providing Proper Number of Life Preservers.

(Times Leased Wire.)

Honolulu, July 15.—Captain F. Tollefson, master and owner of the power schooner Rainbow, was arrested to-day on a warrant charging him with manslaughter under the statute used by the prosecution in the case of the Slocum disaster in New York.

Several days ago the Rainbow was carrying an excursion party of twenty-five children and a number of women when the craft capsized and sank off the Island of Molokai, near Puckoo harbor. All of the passengers were saved, but one woman died afterward of shock.

It is alleged that the schooner was not provided with the proper number of life preservers and life saving apparatus.

NEW DECKS FOR SHIP HAZLEWOOD

Vessel Expecting Grain Charter in the Near Future.

A few days ago there was a rumor that the ship Halewood, which is keeping company with the Senator in Esquimalt harbor, was likely to be chartered to carry grain to the United Kingdom. Nothing definite has so far been heard, however. No vessels are being chartered this year at less than union rates and the Halewood will lie where she is rather than underbid.

Captain Brew has not been idle since the vessel arrived in port last November. She has been chipped all over, and several tons of paint has made her look very gay. The latest work to be done on her is the laying of a new deck. The work is nearly complete, and when she is finished the Halewood will be as smart a ship as may be found in the seven seas.

NEW PACK SALMON ARRIVES FROM NORTH

Fishing Still Continues Poor at Rivers Inlet.

Three thousand cases of the new pack salmon were brought down from Northern points by the steamer Vadso and discharged at Vancouver prior to the steamer leaving for Ladysmith to coal on her way to this port. She is arriving here this afternoon and will load a good deal of cargo before leaving late to-night for Northern British Columbia. The salmon was picked up as follows: 1,200 cases from the Skeena, 1,200 cases from the Naas and the remainder from Namu.

The Vadso also brought south eleven fishing boats from the Naas river for use on the Fraser. This being the big year on the Fraser a large pack is looked for, and the boats will be needed more there than in the North.

The Vadso brought word that the fishing is still poor at Rivers Inlet, although on the Skeena and Naas rivers there is a good average run.

TIME-SAVING PLAN FOR CUNARD LINE

Directors Decide to Land Passengers and Mail at Fishguard, Wales.

After giving the matter their consideration for the last three months, the directors of the Cunard line have decided to make the experiment of having their mail and passenger steamships call at Fishguard, on the coast of Pembrokeshire, South Wales, to save time on the outward and homeward voyages, says the New York Times.

Fishguard is thirty-two miles nearer to Queensland than Holyhead, and 102 miles nearer than Liverpool. This means a saving of at least six hours against Liverpool, and would enable passengers on the big liners Lusitania and Mauretania to be certain of reaching London at a reasonable hour on Monday nights, and those on the Lucania and Campania on Tuesday night, sailing from New York on the preceding Wednesdays. Westbound, the liners should land their passengers at New York on Thursdays and Fridays respectively, according to the speed of the ship. It is understood that the first experiment of landing passengers at Fishguard will be made by the Lusitania, sailing from this side on July 28th.

Passengers desiring to go on to Liverpool will be permitted to do so.

The railroad service from London to Fishguard is operated by the Great Western railroad, which has spent $15,000,000 in erecting long piers and deepening the harbor, so that there is plenty of water there for the largest ships. A fleet of 23-knot turbine steamships makes the passage across from Fishguard to Rosslare, Ireland, in two hours and forty-five minutes. The American boat train specials will make the journey to London in five hours, either way.

One of the officials of the Cunard line said:

"The question is not so much cutting out Queenstown as a port of call for passengers and the Irish mails, but where the delay comes in is in the waiting three and four hours for the late mails from London. In the eastward run the Lusitania and Mauretania generally reach Queenstown early enough on Mondays to get away before noon. The distance is 86 miles to the Tuskar Light, and 54 miles from there to Fishguard, a total of 140 miles. Allowing for an hour's delay the train should get away at 5 p. m. and land passengers and mails in London by 10 p. m.

"On the short run from August 23rd to January 15th there is a difference of 130 miles in the course, and this should land passengers on the two big ships in Fishguard at 11 a. m. and London at 5 p. m. on Mondays. The Lucania and Campania should be able to land their passengers at Fishguard on Tuesday in ample time to arrive in London the same night.

"The distance from the Tuskar Light to the South Stacks Light off Holyhead is 86 miles, and from that to the bar outside Liverpool is 70 miles."

The Cunard officers are all in favor of the ships calling at Fishguard, as it will, no doubt, be a great saving in time, especially in the winter, when the Mersey is full of fog, and is a decided improvement until the time comes when the British postmaster-general will allow the company to cut out Queenstown altogether and go to the Channel ports.

NAVAL DISASTER OF CENTURY AND HALF AGO

Gun from H. M. S. Ramillies Brought to Surface by Divers.

After lying at the bottom of the sea undisturbed for a century and a half, one of the guns of H. M. S. Ramillies, which was wrecked near Bolt Tail, on the South coast of Devon, has been recovered.

In March last the French steam trawler L'Aigle, was wrecked in a gale close under the Bolt tail. Salvage operations are at present in progress upon her, and two weeks ago, while engaged in salving the boilers of L'Aigle, a diver of the salvage steamer Mallard discovered beneath the sunken trawler the remains of an older vessel. Investigation proved these remains to be undoubtedly those of the Ramillies, whose loss with over 700 lives was one of the greatest disasters in time of peace in the annals of the British navy.

Carefully exploring the sea bottom in the vicinity the diver found scores of guns and hundreds of round shot partly embedded in sand and encrusted with rock and rust. It was decided to salve one of these guns, and this was successfully accomplished. The gun which has been brought to the surface is of iron, 9 feet long, with a 4 inch bore.

One side of the weapon has been worn away with the action of pebbles and shingle washed over it by the tide to such an extent that at the muzzle the thickness of iron is very little, and for its whole length the metal has the appearance of being gradually filed away. Even the trunnions which originally took its weight on the gun-carriage have been worn to spikes.

In contrast to this, the top part of the gun shows not the slightest sign of wear. Its perfect preservation is due to the fact that it was embedded in sand and shingle, which formed a complete protection. On this part of the gun is the touch-hole, and standing out in bold relief are the letters G. R., surmounted by a large crown. The touch-hole is quite clear, and the bands running round are well preserved.

The remains of the Ramillies lie among huge boulders in six fathoms of water, but a great deal of the metal which lies about in profusion has become encrusted to the rocks.

The Ramillies, a 74-gun ship, while making for Plymouth during a severe gale on February 15th, 1760, mistook Bolt Tail for Rams Head, a headland marking the entrance to Plymouth Sound. Getting too close in shore, she became embayed, and was obliged to anchor. Gradually she was driven ashore by the gale, and striking the rocks, was pounded to pieces by the fury of the waves.

Of the 734 souls on board only twenty-five men and a midshipman were saved. Traditon has it that one of the crew warned the captain that the ship was in Bigbury Bay, but was put in irons for what was regarded as an act of insubordination.

THE THAW CASE.

New York Doctor Testifies at Hearing at White Plains.

White Plains, N. Y., July 15.—Harry Thaw laughed to-day at the statement made by his wife that she would not testify in his insanity hearing again until she had personally seen him searched. Thaw declared that his wife's attitude only proved his contention that she desired to see him confined in a jail or asylum.

Dr. Adolph Meyer, of New York, was the first witness called in Thaw's hearing to-day. He testified regarding conversations he had with Thaw while he was on trial for the murder of Stanford White. He said these conversations were held for the purpose of basing his hypothetical question.

The witness then quoted Thaw's statement regarding the shooting of White. As nearly as Meyer could recall the conversation, Thaw said:

"We walked down the aisle. I stopped to speak to some one and then walked on. I saw White glaring at me, then he put down his hand. That is the last thing I remember. The next thing I was conscious of was that there was a stir and the shooting had happened."

ANCIENT BELLS OF BRITAIN.

There are several old bells in Scotland, Ireland and Wales. The oldest are often quadrangular, being made of thin iron plates which have been hammered and riveted together, says the London Globe. At the monastery of St. Gall, in Switzerland, the four-sided bell of the Irish missionary, St. Gall, who lived in the seventeenth century, is still preserved, but more ancient still is the bell of St. Patrick in Belfast, which is ornamented with gold and gems and silver filigree work.

The curfew bell is that about which most has been written and said. It has been thought that it was only used in England, but it was quite common on the continent in the middle ages.

The ringing of bells by rope is still very popular in England, especially in the country, where almost every hamlet, however small, has its church with its peal of bells, which are often remarkably well rung. The first real peal of bells in England was sent by Pope Calixtus III. to King's College, Cambridge, and was for 300 years the largest peal in England. About the beginning of the year 1500 sets of eight bells were hung in a few of the large churches.

In the middle of the 17th century a man named White wrote a famous work on bells, in which he introduced the system of numbering them 1, 2, 3, 4, etc., on slips of paper in different orders, according to the changes intended to be rung. It is calculated that to ring all the changes upon 24 bells at two strokes a second would take 117,000,000,000 years.

One of the most famous bells in the world is the first great bell of Moscow, which now stands in the middle of a square in that city, and is used as a chapel. This bell was cast in 1733, but was in the earth for over 100 years, being raised in 1836 by the Emperor Nicholas. It is nearly 20 feet high, has a circumference of 60 feet, is two feet thick, and weighs almost 200 tons. The second Moscow bell, which is the largest bell in the world that is actually in use, weighs 128 tons. There are several bells, extant which weigh ten tons and over, of which Big Ben, the largest bell in England, weighing between 13 and 14 tons, is one. Big Ben is, unfortunately, cracked.

LOST IN A WOOD.

Miss Campbell-Corry, of Brighton, was found in a Sussex wood recently in an exhausted condition, after having been missing for three days from an hotel at Crowborough, where she had been staying with her mother. She was in a semi-conscious state, and had evidently undergone a terrible ordeal from exposure and want of food.

The young lady started out for a walk through the thickly wooded district, and as she did not return a search was made for her after nightfall, but no trace of her whereabouts could be discovered. Notice was given to the police of the district, and the next day search parties were organized. A reward was offered, and practically all the villagers joined in scouring the many woods and dales of the countryside. All day and night the search parties penetrated the thick undergrowth of the neighboring woods, but without success. The wood in which Miss Campbell-Corry was eventually found, near Hartfield, is several miles from Crowborough.

NATIONAL ANTHEM FOR TURKEY.

It is reported that Saint-Saens has accepted a commission to compose "a national hymn" for Turkey. The Young Turks will of course guarantee the popularity of the hymn. Other nations that may be inclined to smile at the idea of importing "a national hymn" should think twice. The Turks give the job to a good man, and are actuated by business. Their frankness is the point of difference between them and such nations as adopt the taking melody of another country without compensating the composer. Americans who, if they can be said to have a national hymn or "anthem," have appropriated it from England, ought not to poke fun at the musical poverty of Turkey.—Montreal Herald.

PARKS BOARD IS DISBANDING

ALD. FULLERTON HAS RESIGNED FROM BODY

New Member Follows Example Set by Former Ones.

Last night the parks board convened after forty-five minutes wait for the mayor to arrive to make a quorum. The press was requested to leave the room when the matter of the park superintendent's salary came up for discussion.

Ald. Fullerton handed in his resignation rather than continue transacting business as suggested. The reasons for the resignation are set forth by Ald. Fullerton, who this morning said: "At the last parks board meeting we upheld the action of the former board in voting $150 per month for Superintendent England. Ald. Henderson agreed to it saying the board could spend its own money and that if the superintendent took charge of the boulevard and local improvement work, the city would remit to the board his pay pro rata.

"Last night when the press had been sent out the mayor said he and Ald. Henderson could get the council to give $125 for the salary and if the board would agree, the mayor said, they could get it through the council. I wanted this to go on record as a motion by the mayor and Ald. Henderson and Mr. Lewis supported me. There was trouble and they would not put themselves on record, so I resigned. It looks to me that the council does not intend to give the parks board any consideration at all."

Before the superintendent's salary came up the board took action on Sunday games and ruled that the city parks would not be open for regular matches between teams on Sunday. There was, however, no restriction imposed against the members of various teams practicing during Sunday.

Superintendent England said complaints had reached him from people residing near the parks that the boys played games Sunday and they wanted it stopped. He did not feel like taking action without the sanction of the board.

The board requested that whatever sum the city could spend for music in the parks during the summer season should be spent. The council had formerly given $500. The matter, however, stood over as a question of propriety was raised by Mr. Lewis as to the employment of bands on Sunday. If the money is forthcoming from the council the matter will be decided later.

Ald. Turner's proposal that the hour of meeting should be changed from 8 p. m. to 4 p. m. stood over. There were present Mayor Hall, Ald. Henderson, H. M. Fullerton and A. E. Lewis.

VISIT MADE TO PUMPS AND TANKS

Reservoir and Other Works Satisfactory to Mayor and Expert.

An inspection party, consisting of the Mayor, Arthur L. Adams, Messrs. Raymur, Kempke, and Aldermen Henderson, Turner, Stewart, Mable, Bishop and Raymond, made a tour of the new works recently installed or constructed in connection with the waterworks department, and found everything in a perfectly satisfactory condition. Mr. Adams declared that everything was in good working order and to-day he left for home.

Speaking of the trip, Mayor Hall said that they first went to the pumping station on Yates street. There the work was found to be perfectly satisfactory. At the high level tank at the top of the hill everything was perfectly dry outside in spite of the fact that the tank was three-quarters full of water. It had been quite full and yet there was no sign of a leakage.

The new pumps at the North Dairy station were working splendidly, but of course the point of most interest was at Reservoir Hill, where so many complaints have been heard of the seepage which is flowing from the reservoir. At the time of the visit of the officials the water was only nineteen inches in the reservoir, but the water issuing from the waste pipe, the Mayor said, would not be more than would run through the spout of a teapot. When it was considered that this was collected from a reservoir having a bottom area of over two acres, and that the whole inside surface of cement was over three acres, the leakage was almost nothing. The water had been drained off in order that Mr. Adams might have an opportunity to inspect the bottom. In order to clear the water from the reservoir the city had been using that supply for two or three days, and then some of it was allowed to drain away and some people imagined this was a leakage.

Discussing the matter further, the Mayor said that the whole work had been very satisfactory and had been kept within the original estimate in spite of the fact that the reservoir had been built of concrete instead of steel, as was at first intended.

The reservoir was empty at 10 the night before last, and when the visit was made there was nineteen inches of water. It rose five inches yesterday from 5 a. m. to 5 p. m.

ANOTHER WHEAT RECORD.

July Grain Goes to $1.29, but Declines Suddenly.

(Times Leased Wire.)

Chicago, July 15.—July wheat reached a new record for the crop to-day, when it went to $1.29, but declined again suddenly this afternoon. It is current report that James A. Patton holds 4,000,000 bushels of July wheat and is attempting to repeat his coup of a few weeks ago.

July wheat closed at $1.23½. The reaction is attributed partially to the condition of the Russian crop. This report caused a number of brokers to dump wheat into the market suddenly and smashed the price

If education induced this analysis so far it was successful. The memory should be well trained. An educated man was to be judged, however, not by what he remembered, but by what he could handle. Education lay in choice. The chosing of what was beyond for what was near. The joy of an educated man was that he went where he would. An educated man met new joys in every area.

From the sociological standpoint education was also to be considered.

In closing Professor Dale said the habit of doing things right was an important test in educational matters. Boys were to-day being brought up by girl teachers, and he did not think that right. Intellectual honesty was another test of a successful education. The attainment of a scientific habit, thinking correctly was important. The educated man was a free man. If he had mastered some line of study he would be no longer a slave.

Dr. H. S. Pritchett, New York, president of the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching, addressed the convention on the objects of that foundation and explained how the original plan of teachers' pensions had widened out until it now co-operated with the profession for the raising of the educational standard. The foundation applies to Canada and Newfoundland as well as to the United States, and seeks to add an element of security to the teaching profession so far as universities, colleges and technical schools are concerned, which will attract men and hold them in the profession. It has tried to make clear in the United States that simplicity, honesty and thoroughness in college standards are things most needed, most to be encouraged and most noticeable by their absence. The harmonious working of the college with secondary education is urged. Canada had several advantages over the States in the matter of its colleges, one being that it carefully guarded the degree-granting power. Dr. Pritchett expressed the hope that apart from its material aspect the Carnegie foundation would be of inestimable value in improving the understanding between the two countries. He assured the convention that the people across the line saw a great future for Canada and believed in her as, he thought, sometimes Canadians did not believe in themselves.

Professor James W. Robertson, principal of Macdonald Institute, Ste. Anne de Bellevue, Quebec, spoke appreciatively of the message of good-will just delivered to the convention. He regretted that Canadians had not shown the same hospitality to ideas from other lands as they showed to visitors from those lands, and advised them in this regard to avail themselves of every possible good idea that came to them, no matter what its source.

This afternoon, in the elementary department, a discussion is going on in which speakers from the several provinces are presenting the views of each as to what should constitute an elementary education in our common public schools.

ACTIVITY CONTINUES IN SHEEP CREEK

The Kootenay Belle mill since resuming operations about a month ago has produced just over $4,500 in gold. This was with four stamps dropping, says the Nelson News. A further five commenced operations Saturday and it is expected that the Columbia full mill of 14 stamps will be running shortly. Reports of the Golden Belle, Nugget, Queen and Golden Fawn indicate that these properties are all continuing to show great progress and that the leads, veins and ledges are being steadily developed and that these are showing increasingly good values.

The property of the Fife Mines, Ltd., at Fife, is now the scene of much activity, the force of men having lately been considerably increased. The main drift has been extended for some 400 feet and a connection has been made by means of an upraise to the surface, the entire rise being in ore. The ore so far taken out has averaged from 3 to 6 per cent. in copper and from $3 to $8 in gold, while on assay taken recently showed values of $23. The ledge has been traced for a distance of 1,500 feet though its average width has not yet been determined. Arrangements to commence shipping immediately to Trail have been completed.

Despite its great size, an elephant has only eight teeth.

THE NEW FRENCH REMEDY.
TRADE THERAPION MARK
This successful and highly popular remedy, used in the Continental Hospitals by Ricord, Rostan, Jobert, Velpeau, and others, combines all the desiderata to be sought in a medicine of the kind, and surpasses everything hitherto employed.
THERAPION No. 1 in a remarkably short time, often a few days only, removes all discharges from the urinary organs, superseding injections, the use of which does irreparable harm by laying the foundation of stricture and other serious diseases.
THERAPION No. 2 for impurity of the blood, scurvy, pimples, spots, blotches, pains and swelling of the joints, secondary symptoms, gout, rheumatism, and all diseases for which it has been too much a fashion to employ mercury, sarsaparilla, &c., to the destruction of sufferers' teeth and ruin of health. This preparation purifies the whole system through the blood, and thoroughly eliminates all poisonous matter from the body.
THERAPION No. 3 for nervous exhaustion, impaired vitality, sleeplessness, and all the distressing consequences of early error, excess, residence in hot, unhealthy climates, &c. It possesses surprising power in restoring strength and vigour to the debilitated.
THERAPION is sold by the principal Chemists and Merchants throughout the world. Price in England 2/9 & 4/6. In ordering, state which of the three numbers required, and observe above Trade Mark, which is a fac-simile of word 'THERAPION' as it appears on British Government Stamp (in white letters on a red ground) affixed to every package by order of His Majesty's Hon. Commissioners, and without which it is a forgery.

UNDERGROUND PASSAGE TO EXPOSITION FOUND

Many Men Used Tunnel in Order to Gain Free Admission.

Seattle, Wash., July 15.—Beating the Asaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition out of several hundred admissions daily, a crowd of employees on the north trunk sewer, just completed through the fair grounds, with their friends, relatives, acquaintances and some strangers, have been making their entrance to the fair grounds through the capacious tunnel of the new sewer and up through a manhole to the fair grounds.

The scheme of free admission was discovered by Chief Wappenstein's guards, after they had been working a week on the case, trying all manner of schemes to discover whence came the groups of men who appeared each evening walking up the paths from the northeast section of the grounds brushing dirt from one another's shoulders.

The mystery was solved by the discovery that foot prints had beaten down the soft earth around the manhole leading for the new sewer, where it passes through the woods back of the natural amphitheatre. The other entrance to the tunnel is outside the fair grounds, on the university campus and the subterranean passage is said to have been freely used by members of several fraternity houses to gain free admission to the exposition. The dirt of the shoulders was explained by the small size of the manhole, where the men brushed against the sides as they came out.

Chief Wappenstein has clamped on the lid and hereafter the underground wayfarer will be barred.

TARIFF BILL.

Conferees Unable to Agree on Number of Sections Which Are Laid Over.

Washington, D. C., July 15.—Strenuous objections were raised by the house members of the tariff conference to the senate provision in the maximum and minimum feature of the tariff bill, which gives to the president authority to employ such persons as he may see fit in enforcing the tariff law, and which will be useful to congress in tariff legislation in the future. This opposition was all that prevented the adoption of practically all the sections dealing with administration.

The drawback provision is still the subject of dispute. Agreement that the provision of the Dingley law should be re-enacted in the place of the house provision had been almost reached when the house conferees insisted that a provision should be added requiring export entries to be made within three years in order to gain the benefit of the drawback. This feature was a part of the provision adopted by the house, which had also eliminated the necessity for identifying the raw material in the manufactured product offered for export. The senate conferees insisted that the removal of the identification clause opened the door to fraud, and that the three-year provision narrowed the drawback privilege in such a manner that it would work a hardship to manufacturers, who availed themselves of the drawback privileges. The conferees representing the two branches of congress split up on this, and it was laid up for consideration later.

UPHEAVAL MAKES ANOTHER NEW ISLAND

The Bagoslof Group Near Unalaska Undergoes Change.

A dispatch to the Seattle Post-Intelligencer from Seward, Alaska, says:

Mother Nature does not seem satisfied with Bogoslof, the newest Island she has given Alaska. During the past winter she changed it again.

About 125 or 150 years ago there arose in Behring sea a new island, about twenty-five or thirty miles from any other land and sixty miles from the village of Unalaska. This island was named by the Russians Bogoslov. In the '80's another one appeared near the first. The first was then named Castle island, the second Fire island.

During the winter of 1905 and 1906 still another island appeared from the depths of the sea, making a triangular group. This was named Perry island, in honor of the revenue cutter Perry, which was among the first steam vessels to visit it.

This island has been described by those who saw it during its short existence as being composed of rock and cinders in a jumbled mass, from every fissure and crack of which issued steam, gases, fire and smoke.

It was variously estimated as being from 500 to 700 feet in height and a quarter of a mile in diameter. Robert Dunn, the writer who was probably the first man to set foot on the island, had the hair singed from his hands, eyebrows and head, and the shoes burned from his feet. He swam in the deliciously warm water at its base, while the surrounding waters were a little above freezing.

When visited the following spring of 1907, it was discovered that Perry island had blown off his head, and was then no more than 100 feet high at its highest point; also that a sand spit connected it with Fire island.

Running over to visit the new group early in the spring of 1908, Capt. Applegate, of Unalaska, discovered that Perry island had entirely disappeared from the face of the sea, and that in the very spot where it had stood there was now excellent anchorage for his schooner.

But this was not all. A short distance away there was another brand new island, this one being connected with each of the older ones by a low neck of land, thus making but one island of the whole group.

And now this year, 1909, all is again changed. The island of 1908 has disappeared, and two low, semi-circular pieces of land have arisen, each one terminating in each of the old substantial islands, all forming one large circular island, inclosing a lake of hot water. The temperature of this lake ranges from 200 degrees Fahrnheit in its hottest part to about 60 in the cooler places. The waters of Behring sea surrounding it are about 40 degrees.

In the lake are several small islands. A small boat from the cutter was launched into this lake and considerable data gathered. On one of the islands of the lake was a miniature geyser, spouting boiling water. Over the face of the lake clouds of steam hovered, and were driven hither and thither by the wind.

In this connection it is interesting to note that during the month of June Unalaska experienced a severe earthquake, which was felt over an area extending for hundreds of miles. There is nothing especially noteworthy about this, except that the volcano of Akutan, within the zone of the earthquake, became suddenly silent after months of severe action. At the same time two hitherto comparatively quiet volcanoes suddenly became vigorously active. Pavloff mountain, on the Alaskan peninsula, west of Sand Point, and an unnamed mountain near Sand Point, were seen to belch forth not only great volumes of black smoke, but flames were seen, from the deck of the steamer Santa Ana, to shoot high into the sky from each of them.

Mount Pavloff especially presented a magnificent spectacle as the Santa Ana passed it on the night of the 23rd of June. Black smoke like that from the funnel of a huge steamer poured rapidly and steadily thousands of feet straight into the heavens. There it flattened out into a huge cap, which slowly drifted to the eastward.

Contrasted with this inky cap was the bright sky of the sub-Arctic midnight. Suddenly faint pink schades began to appear along the borders of the great folds of smoke, high above the mountain. This rapidly grew deeper and deeper until the whole cloud of smoke was one mass of glorious crimson and black. Then, as if to add a grand finale to this awe-inspiring display, flames of the deepest red leaped hundreds of feet above the crater's mouth, where it remained for some minutes as if blown from a blast furnace.

Gradually this would die away, receding through all of its beautiful phases until nothing but the black column and cap of smoke remained. Time after time was this spectacle repeated.

CUTTING TRAIL TO NEW COAL FIELDS

Diamond Drill Will Be Taken to Property on Queen Charlotte Islands.

(Special Correspondence.)

Skidegate, July 7.—A. Gowning came in from Tassu last week to hire more men for the property owned by Elliot & Corlett.

The Japanese are preparing to leave Queen Charlotte City in a body.

A new buoy has arrived to replace the one at the entrance to the harbor, which has been out of order for some time.

The Princess Beatrice has been in to Queen Charlotte City twice during the past week under special charter for the supplies for the coal fields.

T. A. Kelly, P. L. S., arrived on the last boat. He has a number of timber limits to survey near the Skidegate inlet, and also expects to survey the railroad line into the Yakon coal fields.

A crew of men has started to cut a trail into the coal fields to take in the diamond drill which will arrive by next boat.

The steamer Claxton has just left the harbor with about thirty Haida Indians for the summer fishing on the Skeena.

Leigh urban council has decided to purchase a new dress for a lady whose costume was damaged by catching in a projecting fence. The cost, however, is to be deducted from the contractor's bill.

TROOPS TO REMAIN AT GLACE BAY

Resolution is Carried at Meeting of the City Council.

Glace Bay, C. B., July 15.—The centre of interest last night was in the town hall at the council's meeting. When the question of the presence of the militia came up it was expected that some action would be taken by council. Councillor McDonald moved a resolution with a final clause stating that in the opinion of the council it will be necessary to retain the soldiers until the cause of the disturbance is removed.

As soon as the resolution was before the meeting, Councillor Tobin rose and said that he was going to object to the motion being put, as it would have to be treated as a notice of motion, but it went ahead.

Deputy Mayor Tobin objected to the way the riot act had been read, the sheriff having been brought to Glace Bay in a special train the night before, and the riot act having been read in broad daylight, when there was little apparent necessity. He spoke of the hardships endured by the women last winter and extolled them for their bravery. He said the soldiers cost $1,000 a day. The soldiers were too much under the thumb of the coal company. Finally he moved an amendment that a meeting of ratepayers be called to consider the resolution and the question of cost.

Councillor McDonald said that it was all nonsense about the cost of soldiers being $1,000 a day to the town, and gave figures to show that the cost was not more than $250 a day. The 181 special police appointed by the mayor would cost as much as the soldiers. The mayor said he thought the strikers as well as the workmen in the mines should be protected.

The amendment was defeated on a vote of 9 to 2 and the motion carried. So the soldiers will remain until the strike is over.

The case of the musical man who named his four daughters after the eight notes of the tonic sol-fa scale is matched by that of the provincial printer who named his children from the type founts he used—Ruby, Pearl, Diamond. The first two are no uncommon names for girls, only Ruby happened to be a boy. He followed in his father's footsteps and afterwards became a printer's manager in London.

What was wanted from the teaching profession was that they should furnish candidates for the necessary positions. The last two appointed were one from Vancouver and one from Charlottetown. This method would prove a vitalizing feature throughout the country. One of the principal criticisms against the system was why candidates should be examined upon subjects which they were not to use. The answer was that if he did not know any more than the necessary work he did not even know that.

A man if he had no resources outside of the service, "would either go to sleep or go to the devil." If he was fairly well educated generally he had resources for improving himself in his leisure hours.

Finally Prof. Shortt said he had been surprised at the few difficulties in making the reform. If the teachers did not supply the raw material they would either have to lower the grades or take the wardheelers of the politicians.

James L. Hughes, of Toronto, gave one of his characteristic lectures before the assembled teachers, the main feature of which was the fund of anecdote and the expressive manner in which they were told. Mr. Hughes is always impressive, and last night's lecture was no exception to the general rule.

"Tendencies in Modern Education" was his subject. All great tendencies were modern, he said, free schools, libraries, women teachers. Froebel had given them the vision. The child was not thought of until recent years. Three great elements were considered necessary in the development of the child, power, skill, character, and on these all education was based. The new type could not well be tested by examination. The great tendency of today was to "kindle" the child at the centre of his power. Then the other powers would come into life. Study the individual soul and reveal to him what his great natural power was. Habit comes from within and worked outward. The time, he thought, would come when drudgery would give place to joy. The man never began to do his work truly until he had faith in himself.

The modern school tried to make boys constructive and productive. This was done largely by manual training.

By and bye there would be other methods of testing than by examination. He had no time to tell what the other plan would be, but it would be a better one. Literature under the new way would not be a grind, but a vision. Science would not be a memorizing of facts, but would be applied. History would be a study of the inner life of the people, and music and art would not be neglected. Culture would be a part of it, but not given at the expense of power.

Barnard and Mann gave to the world a great system of free education. In Munich they said that they had given vocational training to the engineers and others, and it was just as necessary that the laborers should have their training. The man who transformed five cents' worth of clay into a five dollar vase gave four dollars and ninety-five cents to his country. The people of Munich gave the children training in all the elements of modern work. The child would be equipped then for his vocation in life. Canada would have to establish technical schools if she would keep pace with other countries. The old tendency was to make all children alike, whereas God made no two alike. Children were not miniature adults. There should be a full, rich, free child life. They should give him all the joy here that he can get in order to fit him for the struggles which would come later.

The positive elements of human power were the good elements, and the negative elements were bad ones. It was much easier to make a boy "do" than "not do."

The new idea of self-control was to fit oneself for the work God intended him to do. The new idea was much better than the old. Pointing out the weaknesses never improved anyone. An ounce of appreciation was worth a pound of fear. God Himself was used negatively in the homes as well as in the schools in former days.

All great modern tendencies, the speaker said, were based on the recognition of the three great elements, power, skill and character. They should give the children as much joy as they could have and encourage the positive rather than the negative relationship.

PREPARE FOR LUMBAGO!

If You Have "Nerviline" Handy One Rubbing Will Cure the Pain.

Thousands Use "Nerviline."

The "strike" of lumbago is like a bolt of lightning—you never know when it is coming or where it is going to strike. Probably the one certain thing about lumbago is the fact that it can be cured by Nerviline—the only liniment that penetrates deeply enough to reach the congested chords and muscles.

LETTER NO. 4875

"Years ago I strained my back and suffered considerably with weakness over the spine," writes Darius P. Millan, a well-known farmer, residing near Kingsville, "Then lumbago attacked the weak spot, and for days at a time I would have to lie up in bed, unable to move or turn. Liniments, poultices and hot applications failed to bring the desired relief, and I was in despair of ever getting really well again. I at last decided to test 'Nerviline.' I got five bottles from the drug store and had it rubbed on three times a day. The stiffness and pain left my back quickly, and by continuing Nerviline I was completely cured of Lumbago."

This is similar testimony to that of nearly five thousand Canadians who have written unstinted words of praise to the manufacturers of Nerviline. For the cure of lumbago, sciatica, neuralgia and rheumatism there is no liniment with one-fifth the pain-relieving power of Nerviline.

Refuse any substitute. Large 25c. bottles of Nerviline, or five for $1.00, at all dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

CITY OF VICTORIA

MUNICIPAL CLAUSES ACT, SECTION 59, PUBLIC HEALTH ACT AND BY-LAW.

WHEREAS upon enquiry by the Council of the Corporation of the City of Victoria, sitting also as the Board of Health in and for the said City, on Monday, the 12th day of July, 1909, pursuant to notice in that behalf served upon the owners and occupiers hereafter named, the Council heard and considered the complaint of Thomas Lancaster, Sanitary Inspector in and for the said City, alleging that a certain building situate on Lot 985, Block 9, within the said City (southeast corner of Yates and Vancouver streets) is in an unsanitary condition and constitutes a nuisance dangerous to the public health, and having heard and considered the evidence of the Medical Health Officer, Sanitary Inspector, and of the agent for the occupier and the owners, did consider and determine the said complaint as proven.

NOW WHEREAS the Council of the Corporation of the City of Victoria do find and determine that Messrs. Lee & Fraser, real estate agents, Trounce avenue, are the owners of the said stable; that the British Columbia Market Company, Ltd. Ly., are the lessees; and the Council do find and determine that the said stable is a nuisance dangerous to the public health, and it is ordered that the said owners and lessees do abate the said nuisance within seven days from the date thereof.

AND it is further ordered that in case of default of the owners and lessees to comply with this order, Thomas Lancaster, Sanitary Inspector in and for the said city is hereby empowered and directed to enter upon the said land and to pull down and remove the said stable and to take such steps to abate the nuisance as upon pulling down and removal of the said stable be deemed necessary by him, and this at the cost of the said owners, and in default of payment of such costs and all expenses incidental thereto the said owners shall be proceeded against for the recovery of the same.

Passed this 12th day of July, 1909.

FIVE GIRLS LOSE LIVES WHILE BATHING

Victims Members of Picnic Party—Two Bodies Have Been Recovered.

New Westminster, B. C., July 15.—The provincial police expect to secure the other bodies of the five girls who were drowned yesterday while on a picnic to Aliceville, near Barnet, about ten miles up the inlet from Vancouver. The body of Miss Ankers was brought to the surface soon after the accident, and Miss Buck's body was secured last evening. With better appliances for grappling taken out this morning, the bodies of May and Annie Murphy, and of Alfhild Paulsen will be dragged for again to-day.

The gloom of the disaster is felt throughout the city as the victims were all known here. A particularly saddening incident was the fact that Miss Ankers was preparing to be married shortly. No inquest is considered necessary.

The five had been three hours on the beech when they decided to go in bathing. All donned bathing suits, and with the teacher in the centre they walked out towards deep water. Suddenly the one on the end of the row slipped over a ledge and lost her footing in deep water. She pulled in the others, one after another, and all were carried off shore by the tide. Their screams brought a number of boy bathers from a distance, but by the time the lads reached the scene the girls had disappeared below the surface.

Miss Ankers was about 25 years of age. Annie and May Murphy, aged 17 and 15 respectively, sisters, Alice Poulson, aged 12, and Signi Buck, aged 10.

PRISONERS EXCHANGE SHOTS WITH SENTRY

Two Soldiers Succeed in Making Their Escape From Guard House.

(Times Leased Wire.)

San Francisco, Cal., July 15.—Officers from the Presidio, aided by the police, are searching to-day for Chas. Z. Pettingill and Warren A. Covey, military prisoners, who engineered a sensational midnight escape from the Presidio guard house. The men were being held in the guard house pending their transfer to the military prison on Alcatraz island. About 2 o'clock yesterday morning they made their way to the roof by way of a water pipe and escaped through a ventilating shaft.

They were discovered by the sentry, but disappeared in the darkness after an exchange of shots with the guard. Blood drops found near the guardhouse lead the officers to believe that one of the men was struck by a sentry's bullet.

How the men secured the revolvers with which they returned the fire of the sentry, is a mystery and will be the object, it is stated, of an investigation by a board appointed late yesterday.

"SHOW GIRL" TO-NIGHT.

Colonial Musical Company Appears in New Comedy This Evening.

That the Colonial Musical Comedy Company has made good in Victoria is evidenced by the large houses which have greeted them in their production of the "Isle of Spice" this week, and to-night they will be seen in an elaborate production of the merry musical review, "The Show Girl."

"The Show Girl" has never been seen in Victoria, and this fact, together with the favorable impression which the company has made in "The Isle of Spice" augurs well for a crowded house.

"The Show Girl" abounds in catchy music, sparkling comedy and bright dancing numbers. Lovers of the Gilbert and Sullivan operas will be pleased with the announcement that by a popular request the ever popular "Mikado" will be played on Saturday afternoon and evening.

ARRIVING—TWO BIG CARS BEING UNPACKED TO-DAY—HANDSOME GOODS

THE new furniture is arriving—carloads of it. Two are in to-day and others due any day now. Fortunate indeed were we to have had such a hearty response to our special offerings during the past 10 days, for otherwise the storing of these new arrivals would have been a problem. But there is more on the way and more room is needed. The result is that more special price tickets will be in evidence on our third floor this week.

Remember that these pieces we have specially priced are not old, out-of-date, shop-worn lines, but are furniture pieces of which we have but one or two of a kind in stock. They are stylish new pieces of the famous Weiler Quality—nothing beter anywhere. The opportunity to save shouldn't be overlooked by you.

The first two cars of the new furniture to arrive are being unpacked to-day, and to-morrow we shall be busy marking these items. Don't fail to come in and see the new things and when in you'll also see the special offerings. New arrivals include many handsome pieces for every room.

BIRTHS AND DEATHS FOR A HALF CENTURY

The Rate Going Down in England, While Cost of Living Rises.

The British Board of Trade has just issued a blue book containing a mass of interesting statistics covering English life for a period of a little more than half a century.

In the middle of 1908 the inhabitants of the United Kingdom numbered 44,539,593, an increase of 14,600,000 since 1851. The growth of the population of England, Scotland and Wales, and the remarkable decrease in Ireland, are shown in the following table:

For every 100 persons living in the year 1851 there were in 1908:

In England	128
In Wales	137
In Scotland	167
In Ireland	67

Thus while the population of England and Wales has nearly doubled in the fifty-seven years, that of Ireland has decreased by 33 per cent.

The birth rate a thousand of population has steadily fallen from 35.1 in 1861 to 26.3 in 1907, while the death rate has fallen in the same period from 22.6 to 15. One cause of the declining birth rate is obviously the falling off of the proportion of married people to the population. In 1850 the number of married persons was 17.2 for every 1,000 inhabitants, in 1909 it had declined to 15.8.

Other figures show plainly how the population has tended during the last fifty years to concentrate itself in London and the great cities. For every 100 persons living in 1851 in London there were 203 in 1908. In the eighty-four largest urban areas the growth in the same period has been from 100 to 282.

Put in general terms, in 1851 the population of incorporated boroughs and other urban districts amounted approximately to 9,000,000, or 50 per cent. of the total population of England and Wales. By 1881 this urban population had grown to 17,000,000, or 68 per cent. of the aggregate population, and by 1901 it had grown to 25,000,000, or 77 per cent. of the aggregate population.

The improvement in the conditions of child life in England is strikingly shown in the following table of the death rate a thousand living in England and Wales:

	1857.	1907.
At ages up to 5 years	67.8	40.9
At ages 5 to 10 years	7.8	3.4
At ages 10 to 15 years	4.7	2.9

The mortality from nearly all the principal diseases has materially declined. The important exceptions are pneumonia, diphtheria and cancer.

The London County Council and its predecessors raised in 1874-75 in general rates only £536,000 (or 7d. in the pound); in 1889-90, £1,858,000 (or 1s. 2½d. in the pound); in 1905-06, £3,235,000 (or 1s. 7d. in the pound). The total rate raised in London, including education, etc., was in 1905-06 £14,875,000; in 1906-07, £15,297,000; in 1867-68 it was only £702,000.

In view of the increase in population and unemployment, and the enormous growth of public expenditure, it is not surprising to find that the burden of total indebtedness has also increased enormously. The amount of total debt has increased between 1874 and 1906 by 369 per cent., or 420 per cent., if the debt of the Metropolitan Water Board be taken into consideration. In 1874 the amount of total debt was £92,820,000, an average of £3 18s. 3d. per head of population. In 1906 it had grown to £482,984,000, or £14 2s. 10d. a head.

The income tax in 1870-71 yielded £6,368,125; in 1906-7 it brought £32,062,412 to the Exchequer, the produce for each penny rising from £1,592,051 to £2,668,867.
